Wide Kansas prairies, huge Texas counties, Fifth ave. New York; Milwaukee's lake front are inhabited by women with bright pink silk stockings and their knees showing.

Queen Marie meeting Chicago ladies, saw knees covered with pink silk. Each lady homesteading on the Mojave desert wears them to the school festival. They brighten the back seat of every automobile from Jacksonville to Seattle.

"It's the other way with the human race in America.

We are moving to definite, coherent homogeneity, away from indefinite, incoherent heterogeneity, becoming more and more alike, in interest and appearance.

Early Morning Interurbans and City Cars are Held up When Trolley Wires Snap at Two Points.

16 TOLL LINES ARE CRIPPLED

Cleveland and Pittsburgh Division Train Crews and Youngstown and Ohio River Road Motormen Report No Tie-up.

Gas for East Liverpool district potteries was shut off and street car service and long distance telephone communication were crippled today as a result of zero temperatures in the Ohio Valley last night.

Trolley wires snapped near the "red steps," Pennsylvania avenue, and also near Port Homer, stalling cars on interurban and city lines early today. The break on Pennsylvania avenue was located by men sent from the car barns at 5:30 o'clock and was immediately repaired, cars starting to operate at 6:10 o'clock.

The break near Port Homer was not found until later. The first interurban car from East Liverpool to Steubenville reached the down river city at 8:30 o'clock, the first eastbound car arrived here at the same time. The first car to Beaver was about a half hour late. Many pottery and mill workers were late because of the tie-up in transportation service.

One of the trolley wires across the Jethro fill snapped about 1 o'clock this morning, but this break was immediate d'scovered and repaired.

Mercury Below Zero.

Sixteen of the 45 toll lines out of East Liverpool were out of commission during the forenoon. Most of these lines were operating at the noon hour, Ohio Bell company officials said.

Trains over the Cleveland and Pittsburgh divis'on were operating on schedule, railroad officials reported The schedule was also maintained on the Youngstown and Ohio River line between East Liverpool and Salem.

Representatives of the Manufacturers' Light & Heat company notified pottery manufacturers to light no kilns in order to conserve the gas supply for domestic consumers. The ban will probably be lifted tonight as the weather forecast is "not quite so cold."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18. — Former Representative John W. Langley, of Kentucky, was paroled from Atlanta penitentiary today after serving one year of two-year sentence for conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act.

LENGEL IS HIT IN TESTIMONY AT CANTON AS STATE RESTS

Prosecution Connects Ex-chief with Ben Rudner.

POINTS FOR PAT.

Surprise is Sprung When Mrs. Rudner Takes Stand.

By DAVID P. SENTNER.

CANTON, O., Dec. 18.—Counsel for Pat McDermott, on trial for the murder of Don R. Mellett, vice fighting publisher, opened its case today by plunging into an alibi defense.

Ten defense witnesses were called who testified to the movements of Ben Rudner, alleged Massillon bootlegger, indicted with McDermott; to Pat not being the man with Rudner on a Sunday morning visit to Canton police headquarters; to McDermott never having visited Rudner in his hardware store, and to Rudner being out of town on the date the prosecution alleged McDermott came to Massillon to get paid for "doing the Mellett job."

Reference to Ex-Policeman.

The prosecution scored a point in cross examining J. W. P. Smith, Massillon merchant police officer, who told of seeing Ben Rudner at 4 a. m. in the street the morning after the midnight slaying of Mellett.

Mrs. Ben Rudner, pretty wife of the Massillon storekeeper, came to her husband's defense, by testifying that she was automobiling with him on the day McDermott was alleged to have phoned him and later visited him. She also accounted for his movements on other occasions stressed by the state's testimony.

The state has connected four former members of the Canton police department with the alleged conspirators. While the defense is attempting to show there was no conspiracy as alleged by the state on the part of McDermott, Rudner and Louis Mazer, indicted for the murder, it is contending that the conspiracy phase has no place in the evidence as only McDermott is on trial.

As its last parting shot, further testimony connecting S. A. Lengel, former Canton police chief with Rudner, one of the three alleged conspirators in the slaying of Mellett, was introduced before the prosecution closed its case at 9:23 o'clock this morning.

Under cross-examination the witness admitted he had had a quarrel with Rudner concerning a police dog. Defense counsel made a motion to strike out all of Brumme's testimony. The court denied this motion.

Defense's First Witness.

The defense called William A. Kuntz, of Massillon, as its first witness.

Kuntz testified he worked in Ben Rudner's store the month of July (the murder month.) He said he did not know the defendant.

"Did you ever see Pat McDermott in the store?"

"I never did."

SIX CHILDREN OF FRANK ROOD, OCCUPY HUMBLE HOME IN ROCK ALLEY, MAY BE OVERLOOKED ON CHRISTMAS EVE BY SANTA CLAUS

Six children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rood, of Rock alley fear they may be overlooked by Santa Claus when he makes his rounds on Christmas eve, one week from tonight.

Without food or fuel and with few household furnishings and scant clothing, the family was found in destitute circumstances on a houseboat along the river front about a month ago.

The father, a potter by trade, was ill with pneumonia when Willard McCoy, engineer at the No. 2 plant of the Hall China company went to the houseboat to advise Rood, who has applied for work a short time previously, that a temporary job was available for him at the Hall plant.

The children, McCoy learned, had been sleeping on the bare floor without coverings. There was practically nothing in the house to eat and four of the seven youngsters had gone to school that morning without breakfast. The husband and father, who had been visited by a doctor on two occasions, said he had never applied for relief.

One Child Dies, Another Ill.

McCoy immediately rented a three-room house in Rock alley near Minerva street and interested a local transfer man in moving what little furnishings the family possessed without charge. McCoy took up a collection to provide the family with groceries and a physician was immediately called to attend the father.

A few days after the family had been installed in new quarters, Alexander, 12, eldest of the seven children, became ill with influenza. Appendicitis developed and he was sent to the hospital, where he underwent an operation Peritonitis developed and death occurred about 10 days ago.

While the boy was being buried at Bellville, W. V., Sarah, 10, was stricken with appendicitis and a few days later she also was removed to the hospital where an operation was performed.

Rood had hoped to accept the job offered him this week but on Monday he was suffering from a liver complaint, and a physician advised him to rest for a few days.

During the last few days neighbors and others have become interested in the case. Beds, bed clothing and other furnishings have been provided. Willing hands repapered the home. The floors, however, are still without carpets or rugs and other household furnishings are needed. Sufficient foodstuffs have been contributed to meet the family's need, but money is required to pay hospital, doctor and medicine bills. McCoy has collected funds to liquidate the expenses of the oldest child's burial.

Clothing for the children and the parents is needed. Rood has expressed a desire to attend church but needs a suit, McCoy said. In addition to the girl in the hospital, the other children are: Ina May, 8; Arthur, 7; Clyde, 5; Elizabeth, 3, and Fred, 14-month-old baby.

LENGEL IS HIT IN TESTIMONY AT CANTON AS STATE RESTS

Prosecution Connects Ex-chief with Ben Rudner.

POINTS FOR PAT.

By DAVID P. SENTNER.

CANTON, O., Dec. 18.—Counsel for Pat McDermott, on trial for the murder of Don R. Mellett, vice fighting publisher, opened its case today by plunging into an alibi defense.

Ten defense witnesses were called who testified to the movements of Ben Rudner, alleged Massillon bootlegger, indicted with McDermott; to Pat not being the man with Rudner on a Sunday morning visit to Canton police headquarters; to McDermott never having visited Rudner in his hardware store, and to Rudner being out of town on the date the prosecution alleged McDermott came to Massillon to get paid for "doing the Mellett job."

Reference to Ex-Policeman.

The prosecution scored a point in cross examining J. W. P. Smith, Massillon merchant police officer, who told of seeing Ben Rudner at 4 a. m. in the street the morning after the midnight slaying of Mellett.

Mrs. Ben Rudner, pretty wife of the Massillon storekeeper, came to her husband's defense, by testifying that she was automobiling with him on the day McDermott was alleged to have phoned him and later visited him. She also accounted for his movements on other occasions stressed by the state's testimony.

The state has connected four former members of the Canton police department with the alleged conspirators. While the defense is attempting to show there was no conspiracy as alleged by the state on the part of McDermott, Rudner and Louis Mazer, indicted for the murder, it is contending that the conspiracy phase has no place in the evidence as only McDermott is on trial.

As its last parting shot, further testimony connecting S. A. Lengel, former Canton police chief with Rudner, one of the three alleged conspirators in the slaying of Mellett, was introduced before the prosecution closed its case at 9:23 o'clock this morning.

Under cross-examination the witness admitted he had had a quarrel with Rudner concerning a police dog. Defense counsel made a motion to strike out all of Brumme's testimony. The court denied this motion.

Defense's First Witness.

The defense called Will'am A. Kuntz, of Massillon, as its first witness.

Kuntz testified he worked in Ben Rudner's store the month of July (the murder month.) He said he did not know the defendant.

"Did you ever see Pat McDermott in the store?"

"I never did."

SIX CHILDREN OF FRANK ROOD, OCCUPY HUMBLE HOME IN ROCK ALLEY, MAY BE OVERLOOKED ON CHRISTMAS EVE BY SANTA CLAUS

Six children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rood, of Rock alley fear they may be overlooked by Santa Claus when he makes his rounds on Christmas eve, one week from tonight.

Without food or fuel and with few household furnishings and scant clothing, the family was found in destitute circumstances on a houseboat along the river front about a month ago.

The father, a potter by trade, was ill with pneumonia when Willard McCoy, engineer at the No. 2 plant of the Hall China company went to the houseboat to advise Rood, who has applied for work a short time previously, that a temporary job was available for him at the Hall plant.

The children, McCoy learned, had been sleeping on the bare floor without coverings. There was practically nothing in the house to eat and four of the seven youngsters had gone to school that morning without breakfast. The husband and father, who had been visited by a doctor on two occasions, said he had never applied for relief.

One Child Dies, Another Ill.

McCoy immediately rented a three-room house in Rock alley near Minerva street and interested a local transfer man in moving what little furnishings the family possessed without charge. McCoy took up a collection to provide the family with groceries and a physician was immediately called to attend the father.

A few days after the family had been installed in new quarters, Alexander, 12, eldest of the seven children, became ill with influenza. Appendicitis developed and he was sent to the hospital, where he underwent an operation. Peritonitis developed and death occurred about 10 days ago.

While the boy was being buried at Bellville, W. V., Sarah, 10, was stricken with appendicitis and a few days later she also was removed to the hospital where an operation was performed.

Rood had hoped to accept the job offered him this week but on Monday he was suffering from a liver complaint, and a physician advised him to rest for a few days.

During the last few days neighbors and others have become interested in the case. Beds, bed clothing and other furnishings have been provided. Willing hands repapered the home. The floors, however, are still without carpets or rugs and other household furnishings are needed. Sufficient foodstuffs have been contributed to meet the family's need, but money is required to pay hospital, doctor and medicine bills. McCoy has collected funds to liquidate the expenses of the oldest child's burial.

Clothing for the children and the parents is needed. Rood has expressed a desire to attend church but needs a suit, McCoy said. In addition to the girl in the hospital, the other children are: Ina May, 8; Arthur, 7; Clyde, 5; Elizabeth, 3, and Fred, 14-month-old baby.

SPEED WORK ON "NARROWS" FOR RIVER HIGHWAY

STEAM SHOVEL ON JOB WEST OF WELLSVILLE

ROUTE CHANGES

Jefferson County Officials Inspect Improvements.

Operations on the Ohio river road are now largely confined to the "Narrows" section. Steady progress is being made in the gigantic task of cutting through a hillside to make way for the proposed new highway which will connect Steubenville, Wellsville, East Liverpool and other Ohio communities by a direct river route.

A steam shovel is still digging its way through tons of rock and earth to provide a route for the new road,—a route where present day traffic has never moved. Working amidst natural handicaps, excellent progress is being made and by early spring, it is predicted that practically all of the digging will have been completed.

No definite time has been set for th opening of the "Narrows" to traffice but those in county and state road building circles who are most hopeful believe light traffic will be using the route early next spring or summer.

Present operations on the Stratton-Yellow Creek section of the Ohio river road have been done by force account. Tremendous progress has been made despite difficult physical obstacles and month after month reveals the finished highway that much nearer.

In the same district, between Yellow Creek and the Columbiana county line, proposed highway changes are now being considered by the road officials and the Pennsylvania railroad engineers which, if successfully worked out, will give added benefit to the river road. Elimination of crossings and a culvert is a part of the general plan.

Yesterday Jefferson county commissioners and county road officials visited the scene of the proposed changes and today spoke favorably for the improvement. It is understood that the Pennsylvania railroad is also anxious to cooperate, likely to the extent of paying for half of the cost.

LEGAL FOES ARE AWARDED 'DRAW'

Both sides won and both sides lost, according to a verdict returned by a jury in No. 1 court in the case of Edward Wardles against James Pugia, of Wellsville. This was an action filed by Wardles to recover $500 damages from the defendant as a result of an automobile accident, the petition being filed in common pleas court, June 1st, last year.

The verdict of the jury was in favor of the defendant on the petition of the plaintiff, and for the plaintiff on the cross petition of the defendant.

In other words, the trial was a "draw."

QUALITY HOLDS THE CONFIDENCE THAT PERFORMANCE WON

Won by brilliant performance and striking beauty, the whole-hearted approval accorded Oldsmobile .... not alone by owners but by the public at large .... grows stronger and stronger every day because that performance endures—and because that endurance reveals standards of manufacture that tolerate no variation from high quality, no departure from precision.

Come and Hear

Kolster and Federal RADIOS

We indulge in no claims, no superlative statements. We say, "Come and hear a Kolster or Federal Radio, or let us give you a demonstration.

Kolster or Federal Radios appeal to the eye but their main appeal is to the ear.

That is why Kolster and Federal Radios have become known as the "musician's radio." They are preferred by famous orchestral conductors, singers, composers and musicians.

ACCEPT OUR OFFER

Without obligating you, without costing you one cent, let us give you a demonstration. We abide by your decision.

SPEED WORK ON "NARROWS" FOR RIVER HIGHWAY

Jefferson County Officials Inspect Improvements.

Operations on the Ohio river road are now largely confined to the "Narrows" section. Steady progress is being made in the gigantic task of cutting through a hillside to make way for the proposed new highway which will connect Steubenville, Wellsville, East Liverpool and other Ohio communities by a direct river route.

A steam shovel is still digging its way through tons of rock and earth to provide a route for the new road,—a route where present day traffic has never moved. Working amidst natural handicaps, excellent progress is being made and by early spring, it is predicted that practically all of the digging will have been completed.

No definite time has been set for th opening of the "Narrows" to traffice but those in county and state road building circles who are most hopeful believe light traffic will be using the route early next spring or summer.

Present operations on the Stratton-Yellow Creek section of the Ohio river road have been done by force account. Tremendous progress has been made despite difficult physical obstacles and month after month reveals the finished highway that much nearer.

In the same district, between Yellow Creek and the Columbiana county line, proposed highway changes are now being considered by the road officials and the Pennsylvania railroad engineers which, if successfully worked out, will give added benefit to the river road. Elimination of crossings and a culvert is a part of the general plan.

Yesterday Jefferson county commissioners and county road officials visited the scene of the proposed changes and today spoke favorably for the improvement. It is understood that the Pennsylvania railroad is also anxious to cooperate, likely to the extent of paying for half of the cost.

LEGAL FOES ARE AWARDED 'DRAW'

Both sides won and both sides lost, according to a verdict returned by a jury in No. 1 court in the case of Edward Wardles against James Pugia, of Wellsville. This was an action filed by Wardles to recover $500 damages from the defendant as a result of an automobile accident, the petition being filed in common pleas court, June 1st, last year.

The verdict of the jury was in favor of the defendant on the petition of the plaintiff, and for the plaintiff on the cross petition of the defendant.

In other words, the trial was a "draw."

We indulge in no claims, no superlative statements. We say, "Come and hear a Kolster or Federal Radio, or let us give you a demonstration.

Kolster or Federal Radios appeal to the eye but their main appeal is to the ear.

That is why Kolster and Federal Radios have become known as the "musician's radio." They are preferred by famous orchestral conductors, singers, composers and musicians.

CIRCUS FILM AT AMERICAN

Pat O'Malley and Marian Nixon in "Spangles."

The longest engagement ever played by a big circus within sight of its permanent winter quarters took place during the filming of "Spangles," the Universal-Jewel to be shown Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the American theatre.

To furnish the setting for this picture, which features Pat O'Malley and Marian Nixon, one of the country's largests circuses, the Al G. Barnes Shows, was taken over entire for a month, and the "big top" set up near the winter quarters at Culver City, ten miles from Universal City.

Here the "Spangles" company worked day after day, with the ring acts going on, the trained animals "doing their stuff," the clowns "clowning," the ringmaster ringing—or, rather cracking his whip, and everything just as it is during a performance. In fact, on one very especial day, a Sunday, an audience of 5,000 persons was recruited to "act" in the picture. Incidentally, the work of the circus people served as rehearsals and practice for them, as the show left the day after the picture company finished, and began its summer tour in Phoenix, Arizona.

"Spangles" was directed by Frank O'Connor, and the supporting cast includes Hobart Bosworth, Gladys Brockwell, Jay Emmett, Grace Gordon and James Conly. The story is by Nellie Revell, with screen adaptation by Lear Baird.

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

Inland Waterway Systems

Representatives of the Mississippi Valley states and the Great Lakes states have got together in the senate and come to a compromise on the question of a navigation channel connecting the lakes with the Mississippi.

This project was opposed by Great Lakes senators because it seemed to imply the continued diversion of a large volume of water from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi by the Chicago drainage canal. The compromise measure is worded so as to avoid authorizing any such diversion. The idea is to keep the two questions separate, handling each according to its own merits.

There will be general satisfaction with this procedure. If Chicago is injuring navigation on the Great Lakes by drawing off large quantities of water for her own sanitary purposes, as she is declared to be doing, there are means of adjusting that. The matter is now pending in the supreme court. That court will doubtless determine whether water from one drainage basin, wanted for navigation there, may legally be diverted to another drainage basin.

As for the transportation features of the proposal, there should be no disagreement about them. The two great navigation systems, one comprising the Great Lakes with their rivers and the other the Mississippi with its tributaries, should both be developed to their capacity for the benefit of national transportation. And both should benefit by connecting them by an adequate canal, to make them virtually one super-system, if it can be done without injuring either system unduly for the benefit of the other.

Broadway Curfew

New York's long-expected curfew law is a reality. The board of aldermen has passed the measure and it becomes effective immediately.

"Broadway groans," says the metropolitan papers. Very likely. Broadway evidently counts that night lost whose late ascending sun fails to reveal a horde of home-bound revellers staggering into the subway. But the night waiters do not groan. Nor the great majority of New York citizens.

It isn't such a radical law, either, an outsider would suppose. It merely provides that the cabarets and night clubs must close at 3 o'clock in the morning.

A lot of Broadway rounders, most of whom are probably visitors rather than regular residents, need it.

But what Broadway needs—and that goes for its visiting butter and egg men—is more sleep.

School Teeth

A taxpayer brought suit recently—in a supposedly enlightened community, too—to stop the school board from paying for dental inspection and care in the public schools. The high light of the suit was the testimony of a school principal, to this effect:

She found an improvement of 99.8 per cent in the mental ability of school children who were taught to take proper care of their teeth. The percentage was arrived at by painstaking observation and checking up of their work, before and after the dental instruction.

Call it 100 per cent improvement. Or call it half that much, if you like. If it will effect only 25 per cent improvement, or only 10 per cent, in the mental keenness and studious accomplishment of the pupils, such work is well worth paying for. Still more valuable, possibly, is the better morale that is likely to go with a clean, well kept outfit of teeth.

An Imaginary State

The fiery and visionary Trotzky is coming to his senses. Appearing dramatically before the Communist Internationale in Moscow the other day, he told his fellow-radicals that it was impossible to build a Socialist state in a capitalist world.

"Russia cannot exclude herself from world economics," he said. "It is necessary for us to buy factory equipment abroad. The present disastrous condition of our industry is the best proof of the dependence of the Soviet Union on the rest of the world. An isolated Socialist country can exist only in the imagnation."

The red Russian statesmen so far have been living and working mainly in the realm of imagination. But there are many signs that they are coming down to reality. When a zealot like Trotzky sees the truth as he has now expressed it, there is hope that the rest of them may see it sooner or later.

Those Red Lights

They tell a story in Lewiston, Me., about a traffic signal tower that was erected there a year or two ago, showing the usual alternate red and green lights. The other day a woman motorist drove right past the tower when the signal said "Stop" and the red light showed. She was held up by a traffic officer, who said to her:

"Don't you know what those lights mean?"

"Well," replied the woman, developing a sudden show of interest, "do you know, I've always sort of wondered what the colored lights were for."

There seem to be quite a lot of people, most everywhere, who sort of wonder what the red lights are for, judging from their procedure, but who unfortunately don't take the trouble to inquire.

THE SPORTS OF THE SEASON.

It's short, today's offering is, but is goes to the point.

"Good morning, madam," said the caller, on one bright winter morning in the early part of December. "Is your husband at home?"

"He is not," said the lady of the house.

"May I ask where he is?"

"Ah, indeed. And may I make so bold as to inquire what he is doing there?"

"Well, if the ice is as thick as he thinks it is, he's gone skating. If it's as thin as I think it is, he's gone swimming."

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The public hears chiefly of those high-jumping stage girls who make lads down from New Haven miss chapel, read some misunderstood husband's ootsey-tootsey letters to 12 perfect strangers or pry a fur coat out of a visitor listed under "Buyers in Town."

Very little is heard of those who change their pace or vanish into humdrum domesticity. There are more of them than most people think. As a matter of fact only about 30 per cent of eager eyed maidens who begin New York stage careers continue them.

One of the most celebrated of the Follies beauties of five years ago after being squired about for years by the pick of Broadway dandies suddenly married what the White Way calls a "clod" and is happy as aproned queen of her cottage kitchen in a middle west village.

Another for whom various "angels" squandered huge sums in effort to star her went up the gangplank of a ship one night and several months later came word of her marriage to an obscure farmer in the English countryside.

Then, of course, there are happily hundreds whose talents are not equal to requirements, realize it and return to their home towns to marry substantial townsmen and live content ever after. There seems to be a halo that goes with their New York experience and they marry well.

There are any number of girls who have turned like startled dreamers from the Broadway pleasures and perfected themselves in nursing, painting, music and other arts. In this way they have become self-supporting and respected.

Novelists seem to carry the burden of physical affliction with more grace than most people. Basil King is almost totally blind. Somerset Maugham has a pronounced impediment in his speech. Rupert Hughes is deaf. Albert Payson Terhune, due to an accident, was able to use only one arm for many years. J. Breckenridge Ellis has been in a wheel chair since a boy. Yet in their presence so overpowering is their personalities one never notices their handicaps.

Among things lost in Pullman cars this week pulling into New York was a turtle. There's an Aesop's fable there.

A hack literary calling is known in the trade as "ghosting." It is done by writers in obscurity for the famous. Sometimes it is an autobiography or one of those up from the East Side narratives. The "ghosters" are well paid but they remain unknown. Writing original newspaper serials has also developed into a highly specialized trade. There are more than a dozen men and women writers who are topping $50 000 a year dashing off bang up yarns which must lead up to a daily startling climax and an abrupt "Continued tomorrow."

Now that uptown night club battles are so numerous several all night drug stores in the Times Square neighborhood are displaying window signs reminiscent of hallowed days on the Bowery and reading "Black Eyes Treated."

The speak-easy hideaways grow in grandeur. One man owns three. In appearance they are apartments furnished in excellent taste and in aristocratic sections. They are rented for small dinner parties—eight being the limited number. The host may take his guests there to be met by a butler and French maid. Cocktails are served as they might be served in one's own home as is the excellent dinner and wine and cordials to follow. Afterward there is a coffee room and electric music. The apartment is merely rented from 6 until 11 and the price is $400 for a party of eight — with the meals and liquor, of course, included in the tariff. The price is the same for one couple or eight and it is said they have been rented every night since they opened four months ago.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

A Remarkable Strike.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec 18.—Perhaps the most remarkable strike that the world has ever known recently occurred in England. It was not the general strike, extraordinary for its brief duration, considering all attending circumstances. Nor was it the coal strike, about which volumes will be written after a panacea for all industrial ills has been discovered.

In fact, this strike was not the result of an industrial controversy. It was not a strike of trades unionists, artisans, or laborers. It was not a strike of "white collar" workers, or of government or civic employes. It did not upset or interfere with the orderly functioning of society. On the contrary, it threatened the disorderly practices of a large part of the British public.

It was a strike of gamblers. The presiding geniuses at baccarat tables did not walkout, nor did the croupiers who run the roulette wheels lay down their rakes and refuse to spin the ivory ball. The faro dealer did not ask for more pay and shorter hours and quit when their demands were denied, and the crap shooters did not park their dice and announce that there would be nothing doing until they were conceded something which they wanted overmuch.

It was a strike of bookmakers, not those whose labors enrich the libraries of the world, but those who enrich themselves by guessing that the public in general can not pick the winner of a horse race. The bookmakers did not strike because it had been demonstrated that the British public was picking better than usual, nor because they were compelled frequently to work overtime, nor yet because they thought their patrons should accept shorter odds. They struck because Winston Churchill, England's Chancellor of the Exchequer, decided that he could materially increase his government's income by imposing a tax on betting. The bookmakers walked out, so to speak, as a protest against the tax, For two days they refused to accept any bets, but their strike was lost before it was started. It was even more futile than the general strike in which the unionists tried to paralyze all activity in England as a means of winning favorable terms for the striking miners.

Betting A Big Industry.

Betting on horse races is a big industry or business in England. Millions of pounds are wagered every day of the racing meets, and millions are wagered in winter books or pools on the classic turf events months in advance of their running. Everybody engages in this business except a very small minority composed of the few who believe that betting is immoral and the other insignificant fraction of the populace who have learned the lesson that betting is unprofitable and that "money you get that way don't do you no good nohow."

Everybody, from the noblest of the nobility to the commonest of the commoners, has something down on the next race that there is to be run. Much of the betting is done at the tracks, of course, but far more of it in what are known in this country as handbooks and are operated secretly, but which in England are conducted openly and are generally looked upon as quite as legitimate businesses as the grocer's or haberdasher's.

Bets that are made range from the charwoman's shilling to a peer's thousand quid, or more, and to even larger sums wagered by what are known as the professional backers. The latter are the professionals and in England are as distinct a class as the bookmakers. In this country there is no corresponding group, save possibly the rather indefinite element composed of men, and a few women, who make a business of "following the races."

It was the professional backers who precipitated the trouble over the betting tax. They insisted that the bookmakers should pay the tax and threatened to withdraw their patronage if the bookmakers persisted in collecting it from the betters. Amateurs, who comprise the great majority of the betting public, disliked the tax, but were willing to pay a small percentage on their winnings, provided the bookmakers bore their share of it.

The tax levied was 2 per cent on all bets at the race courses and 3½ per cent on bets at the starting-price offices. Most of the bookmakers decided to conduct 2½ per cent on winning bets only, losers to pay nothing.

The objection of the bookmakers to the tax, however, was not only the inherent resentment of all people against any tax but was due to the difficulty of collecting it and the keeping of records that would satisfy the revenue authorities, and the general slowing up of their operations incident to making change and arguing with bettors in the multitudinous cases where only small bets were involved.

The Government's Difficulties.

From the government's standpoint, the chief difficulty is in securing a record of the operations of all bookmakers and in effecting a collection of the tax in such a way that no one who bets can escape it. There is no doubt but that the Churchill tax innovation will yield enormous revenues to supplement a sadly depleted national exchequer, provided only that it can be collected. As Shakespeare observed, "there's the rub!"

As an alternative to the system involving a tax collected from bookmakers it has been proposed that the totalizator or pari-mutuel system be adopted, as it has been adopted in France and in those states in the United States which have legitimatized race-track betting. Under the pari-mutuel plan there are no bookmakers to lay odds. Bettors buy tickets on the horses they favor, and the odds are established by a mechanical calculation made the moment the betting on a given race is closed. This system has its advantages. Bettors must put up their cash and they get cash promptly if they win. There are no I. O. U's. Also the state or the government can be assured of collecting all its percentage of all bets laid.

The objection to the system is that it is good only for bets made at race tracks, and when it comes to a government's deriving revenue from betting the important thing is how to collect the tax on the tremendous volume of bets made away from the tracks. To illustrate, when the racing season is on in Maryland 20,000 people may go to Laurel, to Pimlico, to Bowie, or to Hayre de Grace, on any given day, and there wager tens of thousands through the pari-mutuels. But on each such day, 50,000 people in Washington and proportionate numbers in every city in the United States may make bets—and they do!—through illegally operated handbooks. How collect a tax on that kind of betting?

But the amazing thing about what has transpired over in England is that the government there has to a degree legitimatized one of the most prevalent, most pernicious, and most insidious forms of gambling by levying a tax on it, and that the gamblers have gone on a strike as a result.

It is almost as if, in the United States under prohibition, the govern-

Inland Waterway Systems

Representatives of the Mississippi Valley states and the Great Lakes states have got together in the senate and come to a compromise on the question of a navigation channel connecting the lakes with the Mississippi.

This project was opposed by Great Lakes senators because it seemed to imply the continued diversion of a large volume of water from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi by the Chicago drainage canal. The compromise measure is worded so as to avoid authorizing any such diversion. The idea is to keep the two questions separate, handling each according to its own merits.

There will be general satisfaction with this procedure. If Chicago is injuring navigation on the Great Lakes by drawing off large quantities of water for her own sanitary purposes, as she is declared to be doing, there are means of adjusting that. The matter is now pending in the supreme court. That court will doubtless determine whether water from one drainage basin, wanted for navigation there, may legally be diverted to another drainage basin.

As for the transportation features of the proposal, there should be no disagreement about them. The two great navigation systems, one comprising the Great Lakes with their rivers and the other the Mississippi with its tributaries, should both be developed to their capacity for the benefit of national transportation. And both should benefit by connecting them by an adequate canal, to make them virtually one super-system, if it can be done without injuring either system unduly for the benefit of the other.

Broadway Curfew

New York's long-expected curfew law is a reality. The board of aldermen has passed the measure and it becomes effective immediately.

"Broadway groans," says the metropolitan papers. Very likely. Broadway evidently counts that night lost whose late ascending sun fails to reveal a horde of home-bound revellers staggering into the subway. But the night waiters do not groan. Nor the great majority of New York citizens.

It isn't such a radical law, either, an outsider would suppose. It merely provides that the cabarets and night clubs must close at 3 o'clock in the morning.

A lot of Broadway rounders, most of whom are probably visitors rather than regular residents, need it.

But what Broadway needs—and that goes for its visiting butter and egg men—is more sleep.

School Teeth

A taxpayer brought suit recently—in a supposedly enlightened community, too—to stop the school board from paying for dental inspection and care in the public schools. The high light of the suit was the testimony of a school principal, to this effect:

She found an improvement of 99.8 per cent in the mental ability of school children who were taught to take proper care of their teeth. The percentage was arrived at by painstaking observation and checking up of their work, before and after the dental instruction.

Call it 100 per cent improvement. Or call it half that much, if you like. If it will effect only 25 per cent improvement, or only 10 per cent, in the mental keenness and studious accomplishment of the pupils, such work is well worth paying for. Still more valuable, possibly, is the better morale that is likely to go with a clean, well kept outfit of teeth.

An Imaginary State

The fiery and visionary Trotzky is coming to his senses. Appearing dramatically before the Communist Internationale in Moscow the other day, he told his fellow-radicals that it was impossible to build a Socialist state in a capitalist world.

"Russia cannot exclude herself from world economics," he said. "It is necessary for us to buy factory equipment abroad. The present disastrous condition of our industry is the best proof of the dependence of the Soviet Union on the rest of the world. An isolated Socialist country can exist only in the imagnation."

The red Russian statesmen so far have been living and working mainly in the realm of imagination. But there are many signs that they are coming down to reality. When a zealot like Trotzky sees the truth as he has now expressed it, there is hope that the rest of them may see it sooner or later.

Those Red Lights

They tell a story in Lewiston, Me., about a traffic signal tower that was erected there a year or two ago, showing the usual alternate red and green lights. The other day a woman motorist drove right past the tower when the signal said "Stop" and the red light showed. She was held up by a traffic officer, who said to her:

"Don't you know what those lights mean?"

"Well," replied the woman, developing a sudden show of interest, "do you know, I've always sort of wondered what the colored lights were for."

There seem to be quite a lot of people, most everywhere, who sort of wonder what the red lights are for, judging from their procedure, but who unfortunately don't take the trouble to inquire.

BE IN CHURCH SUNDAY

I have again spent Christmas in the Christmas Land. Throughout the 1925-1926 Christmas festival (for there are two Christmas celebrations in Bethlehem, twelve days apart, owing to the use of two calendars by the Occidental and Oriental Churches), my home was in Jerusalem; and Bethlehem is only fiv miles distant. Having fulfilled the ambition of millions of devout Christians, to celebrate Christmas at the very scene of the Nativity, I am bound in candor to say that the day is more fittingly kept, and with truer Christmas feeling, in uncounted homes in the western world. It is far better to know the spirit of Christmas than to visit the scene of Christmas.

What does the traveler find who goes to Bethlehem today? First of all, he sees a modernized town, with large houses, built mostly by the money of returned emigrants. There are many big churches, school, orphanages, monasteries and convents. The people are predominantly Christian (very few of them Protestants) and in their faces and in the women's dress show strong evidence of Crusader influence. The principal industry of Bethlehem is cutting mother of pearl ornaments.

The Oldest Church in the World.

Over the grotto which is the traditional scene of the birth of Jesus is a large ancient church, the oldest in the world that is still used for worship. Its tiny door, to enter which even the proudest prelate must stoop, recalls the centuries throughout which the church had to be defended against armed foes. The main room of the church, like Bethlehem and its people, bears traces of the long-time presence of the Crusaders in this place.

Three rival Christian Communions have wrangled and fought-often physically fought—over their rights in this venerable place of worship. These are the Greek Orthodox, the Roman Catholic, and the Armenian Gregorian. To this day, British soldiers, successors to the Turkish troops, stand guard at the birthplace of the Prince of Peace to keep the quarrelsome churchmen from flying at one another's throats. The principal body of the church belongs to the Greeks; the largest chapel is the possession of the Latins; and the Armenians have a small chapel and altar—where, on the Christmas Day of the eastern Churches, I heard them trying to drown out by shrill singing the service of the Greeks! Nothing very Christmasy about that, was there?

Beneath the church is the grotto which oldest tradition says was the stable part of the ancient Bethlehem khan, in which the Babe was born to Mary. It is now overlaid with decorations, each of the two great Churches contending zealously for its right to hang silver lamps and put up pictures and inscriptions. At the Christmas celebration, sumptuously dressed dolls are placed in the Crypt of the Nativity.

In the Field of the Shepherds.

Whoso goes to Bethlehem for either the eastern or western Christmas, will see great crowds of many nationalities in the holiday spirit; and elaborate parades, through Bethlehem's square and into the Church, of richly-vestmented prelates, with costly banners and crosses. But of the bubbling joyousness of Christmas; of the overflowing spirit of good will and peace; and of the simplicity of the first Holy Night, he will see little or nothing.

To draw near the spiritual sense of what the first Christmas meant, the visitor must leave the crowded city of Bethlehem, and the ceremony-surfeited Church of the Nativity, and make his way out to the neighboring Field of the Shepherds. Everything elese has changed in Bethlehem; nothing remains to remind one of the night of nights. But out in the open the scene is the same. Here are the old hills, the old view of the mountains of Moab by the light of the clear Syrian skies, and the old fields where once the shepherds watched their flocks by night.

It was not amidst the pompous pride of ecclesiasticism that the Son of God came to earth; but to these lowly, lonely shepherds, simple and trustful, representatives of the great bulk of earth's plain people Heaven drew nearest to earth on the spot here common men fulfilled their daily duty. These fields, where still the sheep are pastured, heard the songs of the angels from the rent skies; and saw the Glory that once shone above the Ark of the Covenant. It was to ordinary men, engaged in a lowly calling, that there was given the news of the emancipation of the race from sin and war and unbrotherliness. That a Saviour had been born—the news transcending all other news—was first told, out here in the open air, to shepherds whose one quality of greatness was their unquestioning faith in God.

Cosmopolitan Crowds at Bethlehem.

Even though too much formal churchliness separates between the pilgrim to Bethlehem and the Nativity itself, one great testimony to Christmas appears in the Christmas Town at Christmastide. That is the cosmopolitanism of the crowds which throng to the Holy Land in December. Here is visual evidence that the Child of Mary is dear to all people in all places. There are no limits of race or creed in His worship. I saw Chinese and Indians and Arabs and Egyptians and Russians and Italians and Germans and Scandinavians and British and Australians and Americans, all met at Bethlehem.

A greater variety of peoples than were present at Pentecost crowded into the narrow streets of Bethlehem last year to keep Christmas. Alas, that they should have been rewarded only by barren ceremonialism! But the lovers of the Lord are many in all lands; and the lure of the Saviour, born in a Manger, has been the magnet to draw pious pilgrims from all parts of the earth and from all branches of the Church Universal. Christmas sympolizes significantly the fellowship of the followers of Christ. The fact of the Nativity, and the universal love embodied in its Message, have gripped the world. What a kingship the Babe of Bethlehem exercises.

If many of the multitude who had made pilgrimage to the Holy Land for Christmas were disappointed by the arid ecclesiasticism of the festival in Bethlehem itself, they were rewarded by frequent revealing glimpses of the life that formed the background of the first Christmas. They learned to know the familiar sight of a mother and a child on a little donkey, with the bearded husband walking alongside; as when the Holy Family went down into Egypt. They mayhap saw shepherrs, in their heavy cloaks called abeyahs, crouching about little fires on the hillside, keeeping watch over their flocks by night. Assuredly, they became familiar with the type of Syrian girl, ovel-faced, lustrous-eyed, olive-skinned, such as Mary was. They traveled the Great Road which runs north of Nazareth, made sacred by the feet of Mary and Joseph and Jesus. They became familiar with the Boy's home, hills and lake, and, like Him, they fed their spirits upon the sites sacred to Israel's history. And they drew near to the life of the lowly in the Land of the Lord.

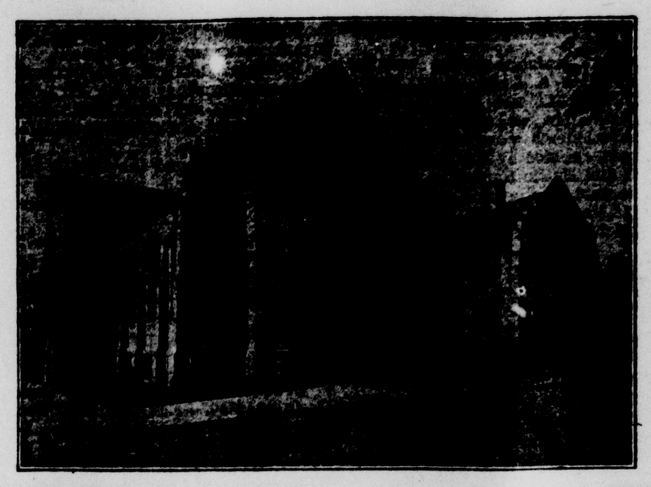

The High Strategy of Christmas.

Such of the Christmas pilgrims as were informed, and broad-minded, saw, last year, amidst the scenes of Christmas, the high strategy of this revelation of God by the mysterious Incarnation of Himself in a Babe at Bethlehem, who should be heaven's Messenger of peace and good will.

Still, as of old., the Christmas Land is central to the world's politics. Imperialism, oppression and exploitation are the order of the day in the East. Again, as in the time of our Lord, the voice of the people cries aloud for deliverance. War's guns in Syrie drown the music of the Christmas bells.

At the same time, projects for general peace abound in the world. Has any of these superseded the program of the Christmas angels? Clearly not. Peace is to come only "among men of good will." Until the spirit of Christmas rules in the hearts of the nations and of statesmen, supplanting present rivalries and selfishness, there simply cannot be peace. The strategy of God strikes deep into the human heart. He purposes a made-over world by way of made-over men, who confess allegiance to a new sovereignty, a new Prince, and who accept the law of righteousness and of love which Christ came to lay down. Even the significance of a renewal of the world by way of the Babe—the cradle-route to character—becomes apparent as we contemplate Christmas as the feast of children; the making over of life from its beginnings, and animated by the spirit of Christ himself.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Wheeling Pastor Organized First Methodist Class

Methodism, in East Liverpool and vicinity, had its beginning in the days when "church attendance was regarded by the pioneer as a great privilege and a duty." History of the foundation of the Methodist Episcopal faith is found in eloquent detail in the book "Memories" compiled several years ago by Christian Metsch and C. R. Boyce.

From the lone cabin of Thomas Fawcett and his family who settled on the Ohio river, in the Northwest territory about the year 1798, sprang the settlement which later became Fawcettstown, and still later, East Liverpool.

"In 1823 there were only six or seven families in the settlement and Second street was but a crooked bridle path along the shore of the river." An old grist mill was the town's chief business interest, so "Memories" states.

Initial Meetings.

First religious meetings were conducted in the log school house, which was located near the present site of the Central school. "Crevices between the unhewn logs were plastered up with clay, and at the west and south openings were left for light and over these were tightly drawn dark, heavy paper soaked in oil to make it more transparent. Within the floor was rough, displaying all about the axe strokes of some early pioneer; the seets were benches without backs and desks were formed by a single board around the wall supported by pins driven in the logs."

The Rev. George Brown, of Wheeling, said to have been a most dynamic preacher, was the first to organize a Methodist church. The organization took place in 1827 in the home of Claiborne Simms Sr.

First Members.

Names of the members of the class during the first few years were Jesse Johnson and wife, James and William Warrick and their wives, Mrs. Robert Fawcett, Claiborne and Basil Simms and wives, the Fawcett sisters, Simeon Johnson and wife, Mrs. Nancy Anderson, Mother Abigail Smith, Samuel Lyon and wife, John Lyon, Able Coffin and wife, Benjamin Davidson and wife, and also other members of the Stone, Johnson and Stevens families. Following organization of the class, meetings were conducted in the log school, a Sunday school was opened with Jesse Johnson acting as superintendent.

Church services were extremely solemn occasions, the sermons usually inspiring awe in the hearts of the listeners, young and old. Hymns were sung by couplets, the preacher first reading two lines, then the congregation singing them, after which the next two lines were read to them, and so on thorugh the hymn.

Services for the following Sunday, announced by the circuit rider preacher were called for "early candlelight."

Attending the services was as important in the lives of the pioneers as any part of their daily existence, and "Memories" relates that "men and boys not infrequently walked ten miles to attend some cammeeting and it was at these meetings that scores were converted and became staunch members of the church."

Donate Site for Church.

It was through Joseph Smith, son-in-law to Thomas Fawcett, that negotiations were completed by which a lot fronting 60 feet on Fifth street and 90 feet on Jackson street was donated the Methodist Society, in 1836.

Plans for the erection of a church were begun at once. Membership in the Methodist church had grown to such an extent that an edifice really in advance of the time was planned. The building was almost square, history states, with a stone foundation which served as a basement, in which services were first conducted. The upper portion of the church was brick and was built several years after the basement.

Public school sessions were conducted in the basement of the church for several years, the log cabin having become dilapidated.

The church was not infrequently called "Father Phillips' church" because when the little band of Methodists found it almost impossible to meet the financial obligation of the new church building, this faithful member mortgaged his farm in order to provide funds. He and his family spent long years of hard labor thereafter to pay off the mortgage.

Circuit Riders.

Among the circuit rider preachers listed in "Memories" are included Stephen Hubbard, who traveled the Columbiana circuit in 1834; C. H. Jackson; James Madison Bray, who was circuit preacher from 1842 to 1843.

Storm Damages Church.

The storm which occurred in January, 1854, carried away the roof of the church and blew in one of the walls, making further services in the building impossible. It was necessary to almost rebuild the structure and until repairs were made, services were conducted in the Presbyterian church.

Money for the rebuilding was accumulated by cubscription, the ground prepared, and the foundation laid for a new church, the predecessor of the present building. The Rev. A. W. Butts was in charge of the East Liverpool circuit at the time of the storm and during subsequent preparations for rebuilding.

Through War Period.

Under management of efficient and earnest ministers the East Liverpool church progressed, until the exciting times of 1860-1864 came. The Rev. M. W. Dallas, pastor at that time, organized a company which went to Columbus for enlistment and the pastor served in the army as chaplain.

The Liverpool circuit, which had been gradually decreased, was in 1860 composed of East Liverpool, Glasgow, Ohioville, Brush Run, and Industry.

End of Liverpool Circuit.

The Rev. Wesley Smith was the last pastor to serve the the Liverpool circuit Minutes of the quarterly conference of January 3, 1863 record the request that the Liverpool church be made a separate appointment. This petition was granted and the Liverpool Circuit became history. The Rev. M. S. Kendig was the first pastor, taking up the charge in the spring of 1863.

"Like a child learning to walk the Licerpool parish was weak and unexperienced for the first few years of its existence separate from the circuit. Total membership was 72. Members, unsure what sum they migut be able to pay agreed to give the pastor $320 and as much more as they could raise. They succeeded in raising $340."

Plan New Church.

Plans for the erection of a new church were completed in 1872 and the razing of the old structure took place in the following year

During the erection of this building, services were conducted in an especially built tabernacle.

Cornerstone of the new church was laid in 1873. First services, during the pastorate of the Rev. Ezra Hingeley, were conducted the next year. Through the efforts of the Rev. John Williams and an efficient corps of members the church weathered the storm of financial straits.

Methodist churches were erected in the East End of East Liverpool, and subsequent repairs and improvements were made in the first church, including the erection of a parsonage.

Present Church.

Into the growth of the Methodist Episcopal church of this city has gone countless sacrifices and courageous struggles, the result of earnest convictions and deep faith. The present edifice is a monument to the efforts of its members throughout the years since the foundation of Methodism.

Dedication of the beautiful church was conducted by Bishop William F. Anderson, September 24, 1922, during the pastorate of the Rev. I. L. Wood. The present estimated property value is $250,000. Approximate membership is 1,500.

Much of the success that attends the present routine of the First Methodist Episcopal church is due to the capable leadership of the pastor, the Rev. Frank G. Fowler.

"Spirit of Christmas," Sermon By Rev. B. R. Johnson

We Have Written Christ's Name on Our Checks, Now Let Him Within Our Hearts.

By Rev. B. R. Johnson, Pastor of First Church of Christ.

There is a spirit abroad in the land. It marches to and fro, carrying with it a joyous atmosphere, leaving smiles and toys and happy hearts. What a glorious spirit! It is everywhere. It causes green trees to come from the far north land to make a thousand homes happy with the evergreen, symbol of the undying nature of this spirit. We see old Santa in our stores, in our newspapers and walking our streets. Childish hearts beat high this Christmas tide. Expectancy fills the air. Husbands secretly carry bundles into neighbor's homes, and children hide presents from the eyes of Dad and Mother. All this to be revealed on a certain day, Christmas day.

Meaning of Spirit.

What is the meaning of this strange and transforming spirit? It came from a lowly origin. Away back upon the Judean plains, in a manger there was born a babe. This babe was wrapped in swaddling clothes. But upon this lowly child there was poured out such gifts as none other had known. In heaven there appeared a special star, and it stood over the place where the child lay. Wise men from the East came also and offered gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh. There was music too. No song was ever sung with such melodies and with such import. Its music is ringing [illegible] world and is destined to become the song of a new social order, a new race. "Glory to God in The Highest and Peace on Earth, Goodwill to Men."

(Rev. B. R. Johnson.)

BE IN CHURCH SUNDAY

I have again spent Christmas in the Christmas Land. Throughout the 1925-1926 Christmas festival (for there are two Christmas celebrations in Bethlehem, twelve days apart, owing to the use of two calendars by the Occidental and Oriental Churches), my home was in Jerusalem; and Bethlehem is only fiv miles distant. Having fulfilled the ambition of millions of devout Christians, to celebrate Christmas at the very scene of the Nativity, I am bound in candor to say that the day is more fittingly kept, and with truer Christmas feeling, in uncounted homes in the western world. It is far better to know the spirit of Christmas than to visit the scene of Christmas.

What does the traveler find who goes to Bethlehem today? First of all, he sees a modernized town, with large houses, built mostly by the money of returned emigrants. There are many big churches, school, orphanages, monasteries and convents. The people are predominantly Christian (very few of them Protestants) and in their faces and in the women's dress show strong evidence of Crusader influence. The principal industry of Bethlehem is cutting mother of pearl ornaments.

The Oldest Church in the World.

Over the grotto which is the traditional scene of the birth of Jesus is a large ancient church, the oldest in the world that is still used for worship. Its tiny door, to enter which even the proudest prelate must stoop, recalls the centuries throughout which the church had to be defended against armed foes. The main room of the church, like Bethlehem and its people, bears traces of the long-time presence of the Crusaders in this place.

Three rival Christian Communions have wrangled and fought-often physically fought—over their rights in this venerable place of worship. These are the Greek Orthodox, the Roman Catholic, and the Armenian Gregorian. To this day, British soldiers, successors to the Turkish troops, stand guard at the birthplace of the Prince of Peace to keep the quarrelsome churchmen from flying at one another's throats. The principal body of the church belongs to the Greeks; the largest chapel is the possession of the Latins; and the Armenians have a small chapel and altar—where, on the Christmas Day of the eastern Churches, I heard them trying to drown out by shrill singing the service of the Greeks! Nothing very Christmasy about that, was there?

Beneath the church is the grotto which oldest tradition says was the stable part of the ancient Bethlehem khan, in which the Babe was born to Mary. It is now overlaid with decorations, each of the two great Churches contending zealously for its right to hang silver lamps and put up pictures and inscriptions. At the Christmas celebration, sumptuously dressed dolls are placed in the Crypt of the Nativity.

In the Field of the Shepherds.

Whoso goes to Bethlehem for either the eastern or western Christmas, will see great crowds of many nationalities in the holiday spirit; and elaborate parades, through Bethlehem's square and into the Church, of richly-vestmented prelates, with costly banners and crosses. But of the bubbling joyousness of Christmas; of the overflowing spirit of good will and peace; and of the simplicity of the first Holy Night, he will see little or nothing.

That a Saviour had been born—the news transcending all other news—was first told, out here in the open air, to shepherds whose one quality of greatness was their unquestioning faith in God.

Cosmopolitan Crowds at Bethlehem.

Even though too much formal churchliness separates between the pilgrim to Bethlehem and the Nativity itself, one great testimony to Christmas appears in the Christmas Town at Christmastide. That is the cosmopolitanism of the crowds which throng to the Holy Land in December. Here is visual evidence that the Child of Mary is dear to all people in all places. There are no limits of race or creed in His worship. I saw Chinese and Indians and Arabs and Egyptians and Russians and Italians and Germans and Scandinavians and British and Australians and Americans, all met at Bethlehem.

A greater variety of peoples than were present at Pentecost crowded into the narrow streets of Bethlehem last year to keep Christmas. Alas, that they should have been rewarded only by barren ceremonialism! But the lovers of the Lord are many in all lands; and the lure of the Saviour, born in a Manger, has been the magnet to draw pious pilgrims from all parts of the earth and from all branches of the Church Universal. Christmas sympolizes significantly the fellowship of the followers of Christ. The fact of the Nativity, and the universal love embodied in its Message, have gripped the world. What a kingship the Babe of Bethlehem exercises.

The High Strategy of Christmas.

Such of the Christmas pilgrims as were informed, and broad-minded, saw, last year, amidst the scenes of Christmas, the high strategy of this revelation of God by the mysterious Incarnation of Himself in a Babe at Bethlehem, who should be heaven's Messenger of peace and good will.

Still, as of old., the Christmas Land is central to the world's politics. Imperalism, oppression and exploitation are the order of the day in the East. Again, as in the time of our Lord, the voice of the people cries aloud for deliverance. War's guns in Syrie drown the music of the Christmas bells.

At the same time, projects for general peace abound in the world. Has any of these superseded the program of the Christmas angels? Clearly not. Peace is to come only "among men of good will." Until the spirit of Christmas rules in the hearts of the nations and of statesmen, supplanting present rivalries and selfishness, there simply cannot be peace. The strategy of God strikes deep into the human heart. He purposes a made-over world by way of made-over men, who confess allegiance to a new sovereignty, a new Prince, and who accept the law of righteousness and of love which Christ came to lay down. Even the significance of a renewal of the world by way of the Babe—the cradle-route to character—becomes apparent as we contemplate Christmas as the feast of children; the making over of life from its beginnings, and animated by the spirit of Christ himself.

Under management of efficient and earnest ministers the East Liverpool church progressed, until the exciting times of 1860-1864 came. The Rev. M. W. Dallas, pastor at that time, organized a company which went to Columbus for enlistment and the pastor served in the army as chaplain.

The Liverpool circuit, which had been gradually decreased, was in 1860 composed of East Liverpool, Glasgow, Ohioville, Brush Run, and Industry.

End of Liverpool Circuit.

The Rev. Wesley Smith was the last pastor to serve the the Liverpool circuit Minutes of the quarterly conference of January 3, 1863 record the request that the Liverpool church be made a separate appointment. This petition was granted and the Liverpool Circuit became history. The Rev. M. S. Kendig was the first pastor, taking up the charge in the spring of 1863.

"Like a child learning to walk the Licerpool parish was weak and unexperienced for the first few years of its existence separate from the circuit. Total membership was 72. Members, unsure what sum they might be able to pay agreed to give the pastor $320 and as much more as they could raise. They succeeded in raising $340."

Plan New Church.

Plans for the erection of a new church were completed in 1872 and the razing of the old structure took place in the following year

During the erection of this building, services were conducted in an especially built tabernacle.

Cornerstone of the new church was laid in 1873. First services, during the pastorate of the Rev. Ezra Hingeley, were conducted the next year. Through the efforts of the Rev. John Williams and an efficient corps of members the church weathered the storm of financial straits.

Methodist churches were erected in the East End of East Liverpool, and subsequent repairs and improvements were made in the first church, including the erection of a parsonage.

Present Church.

Into the growth of the Methodist Episcopal church of this city has gone countless sacrifices and courageous struggles, the result of earnest convictions and deep faith. The present edifice is a monument to the efforts of its members throughout the years since the foundation of Methodism.

Dedication of the beautiful church was conducted by Bishop William F. Anderson, September 24, 1922, during the pastorate of the Rev. I. L. Wood. The present estimated property value is $250,000. Approximate membership is 1,500.

Much of the success that attends the present routine of the First Methodist Episcopal church is due to the capable leadership of the pastor, the Rev. Frank G. Fowler.

"Spirit of Christmas," Sermon By Rev. B. R. Johnson

We Have Written Christ's Name on Our Checks, Now Let Him Within Our Hearts.

By Rev. B. R. Johnson, Pastor of First Church of Christ.

There is a spirit abroad in the land. It marches to and fro, carrying with it a joyous atmosphere, leaving smiles and toys and happy hearts. What a glorious spirit! It is everywhere. It causes green trees to come from the far north land to make a thousand homes happy with the evergreen, symbol of the undying nature of this spirit. We see old Santa in our stores, in our newspapers and walking our streets. Childish hearts beat high this Christmas tide. Expectancy fills the air. Husbands secretly carry bundles into neighbor's homes, and children hide presents from the eyes of Dad and Mother. All this to be revealed on a certain day, Christmas day.

Meaning of Spirit.

What is the meaning of this strange and transforming spirit? It came from a lowly origin. Away back upon the Judean plains, in a manger there was born a babe. This babe was wrapped in swaddling clothes. But upon this lowly child there was poured out such gifts as none other had known. In heaven there appeared a special star, and it stood over the place where the child lay. Wise men from the East came also and offered gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh. There was music too. No song was ever sung with such melodies and with such import. Its music is ringing [illegible] world and is destined to become the song of a new social order, a new race. "Glory to God in The Highest and Peace on Earth, Goodwill to Men."

(Rev. B. R. Johnson.)

THE NAME TELLS A TRUE STORY

The very name, Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, tells why, without opiates or chloroform, it is so quickly effective in stopping coughs and in healing the distressing cause. Because it alone combines the curative virtues of pure Pine Tar and other healing ingredients, together with the mollifying demulcent effects of clear fresh Honey. From 651 E. 46th St., Chicago, comes this: "A stubborn cough worried me, kept me awake nights, and resisted other cough medicines, but quickly yielded to your good Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. My druggist recommended it." Ask for it. Sold everywhere.

SEVEN SENTENCE SERMONS.

Ah, when shall all men's good
Be each man's rule, and universal peace
Lie like a shaft of light across the land,
Thro' all the circle of the golden year?—Tennyson.

Glory to God in the highest.
And on earth peace among men in whom he is well pleased. — Luke 2:14. (R. V.)

Ah, dearest Jesus, Holy Child!
Make Thee a bed, soft, undefiled,
Within my heart, that it may be
A quiet chamber kept for Thee.—Martin Luther.

God rest you merry, gentlemen,
Let nothing you dismay,
For Jesus Christ our Saviour
Was born on Christmas Day.
—Old Carol.

In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent His only-begotten Son into the world, that we might live through Him.—1 John 4:9.

How silently, how silently,
The wondrous gift is given!
So God imparts to human hearts
The blessings of His heaven.
—Phillips Brooks.

O ye beneath life's crushing load,
Whose forms are bending low,
Who toil along the climbing way,
With painful steps and slow;
Look now! for glad and golden hours
Come swiftly on the wing:
Oh rest beside the weary road,
—Edmund Hamilton Sears.

how to live. He went about doing good. He taught that it is more blessed to give than to receive. His name is written into the commerce of the world; it is written on the brow of time, for all peoples and nations date their time from his cradle. In a book we have all his recorded sayings. Yet those sayings have so appealed to the life of the world as to change its thought, its conduct and its hopes.

Real Spirit of Christmas.

While there is some selfishness in the observation of Christmas, yet the great majority give their gifts in the spirit of Him whose life made possible the glory of Christmas. Thanks to the many organizations and fraternities who remember the helpless and unfortunate. Some may say bread is enough. But when you carry out your basket of pork, beans and bread, place on it a sack of candy, some toys for the little ones, a book for the older children, a few nuts and some fruit. Bread may be enough for the body, but man, the whole man cannot live by bread alone.

We have written Christ's name on our checks, it appears in our advertisements; it colors our conversation, now let us make His spirit our spirit by letting Him live within our hearts.

Juvenile Bible Study

One question for each day is provided. The parent will find it interesting and helpful to have the child take up the question each day and aid it in finding the answer in the Scriptures, thus developing a knowledge of the Bible and where to find in it the things decided. Send or bring the little folks to the class Sunday at 1:45 p. m. The "Ceramic Cafeteria Auditorium," 121 West Fifth Street.

514. Can we see the condition of the dead?

Answer: We cannot.

515. Then what is the only way we can know about their state or condition?

Answer: By the study of the Bible to see what God says about it.

516. What does the Bible say is the condition of the dead?

Answer: They have no memory and cannot give thanks (Psalm 6:5) cannot praise the Lord (Psalm 115:17, cannot think (Psalm 146:4), know not anything (Ecclesiastes (:5), do not love nor hate nor envy (Ecclesiastes 9:6), and can do nothing—Ecclesiastes 9:10.

517. If the dead cannot talk, think, love, hate or work, how can any of them be tormented?

Answer: They cannot.

518. If Sheol means the condition of the dead, should it not have been translated every time by the same word instead of about half of the time hell?

Answer: Sheol always means the same thing, and should have been translated every time by the same word.

519. Why did not the translators translate Sheol by the word hell instead of grave in Genesis 37:55, 42:38 and 44:29, 31?

Answer: Because people would then know that it did not mean torment; for God would not send good old Jacob to torment for what his sons had done.

520. Why did they not translate Sheol by the word hell instead of grave in I. Samuel 2:6, where it says, "He bringeth down to the grave (Sheol) and bringeth up"?

Answer: Because they did not want the people to think that there was any hope of anyone's every getting out of hell.

THE NAME TELLS A TRUE STORY

The very name, Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, tells why, without opiates or chloroform, it is so quickly effective in stopping coughs and in healing the distressing cause. Because it alone combines the curative virtues of pure Pine Tar and other healing ingredients, together with the mollifying demulcent effects of clear fresh Honey. From 651 E. 46th St., Chicago, comes this: "A stubborn cough worried me, kept me awake nights, and resisted other cough medicines, but quickly yielded to your good Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. My druggist recommended it." Ask for it. Sold everywhere.

SEVEN SENTENCE SERMONS.

Ah, when shall all men's good
Be each man's rule, and universal peace
Lie like a shaft of light across the land,

Glory to God in the highest.
And on earth peace among men in whom he is well pleased. - Luke 2:14. (R. V.)

Ah, dearest Jesus, Holy Child!
Make Thee a bed, soft, undefiled,
Within my heart, that it may be
A quiet chamber kept for Thee.—Martin Luther.

God rest you merry, gentlemen,
Let nothing you dismay,
For Jesus Christ our Saviour
Was born on Christmas Day.
—Old Carol.

In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent His only-begotten Son into the world, that we might live through Him.—1 John 4:9.

How silently, how silently,
The wondrous gift is given!
So God imparts to human hearts
The blessings of His heaven.
—Phillips Brooks.

O ye beneath life's crushing load,
Whose forms are bending low,
Who toil along the climbing way,
With painful steps and slow;
Look now! for glad and golden hours
Come swiftly on the wing:
Oh rest beside the weary road,

how to live. He went about doing good. He taught that it is more blessed to give than to receive. His name is written into the commerce of the world; it is written on the brow of time, for all peoples and nations date their time from his cradle. In a book we have all his recorded sayings. Yet those sayings have so appealed to the life of the world as to change its thought, its conduct and its hopes.

Real Spirit of Christmas.

While there is some selfishness in the observation of Christmas, yet the great majority give their gifts in the spirit of Him whose life made possible the glory of Christmas. Thanks to the many organizations and fraternities who remember the helpless and unfortunate. Some may say bread is enough. But when you carry out your basket of pork, beans and bread, place on it a sack of candy, some toys for the little ones, a book for the older children, a few nuts and some fruit. Bread may be enough for the body, but man, the whole man cannot live by bread alone.

We have written Christ's name on our checks, it appears in our advertisements; it colors our conversation, now let us make His spirit our spirit by letting Him live within our hearts.

516. What does the Bible say is the condition of the dead?

Answer: They have no memory and cannot give thanks (Psalm 6:5) cannot praise the Lord (Psalm 115:17, cannot think (Psalm 146:4), know not anything (Ecclesiastes (:5), do not love nor hate nor envy (Ecclesiastes 9:6), and can do nothing—Ecclesiastes 9:10.

517. If the dead cannot talk, think, love, hate or work, how can any of them be tormented?

519. Why did not the translators translate Sheol by the word hell instead of grave in Genesis 37:55, 42:38 and 44:29, 31?

Answer: Because people would then know that it did not mean torment; for God would not send good old Jacob to torment for what his sons had done.

520. Why did they not translate Sheol by the word hell instead of grave in I. Samuel 2:6, where it says, "He bringeth down to the grave (Sheol) and bringeth up"?

Answer: Because they did not want the people to think that there was any hope of anyone's every getting out of hell.

SOLON FARRALL EXPLAINS WAGE BOOST REFUSAL

CITY SHOULD PAY ITS BILLS, HE DECLARES

Gives Reasons for Rejecting Municipal Employes' Request.

WRITES LETTER

Finance Committee Reported Unfavorably on Proposal.

Declaring that potters have taken two wage reductions since the war, Solon Thomas Farrall, chairman of the finance committee of city council, outlined his reasons for opposing wage increases to city employes in a letter today to the Review-Tribune.

The councilman suggests that the city first pay its gas, electric, sidewalk, dredging the wharf and other bills "before we take on any more expense." Employes of the water works department, who petitioned for a wage boost, "are getting as much and in some cases more than the average wage for this class of work," Farrall says.

Here is his letter:

"Dear Sir:

"In view of the fact that nearly every employe of the city has asked for an increase in wages in the last two weeks, I, as one of your councilmen, want to explain to the people why I have voted against at at this time.

"A lot of people think that when you vote against a wage increase for any one, that you are selfish and narrow minded. I want to say right here that I belong to a labor organization and have for 35 years or more, but that does not say that I am duty bound to sanction every increase that comes before me for city employes.

"In the first place the pottery workers of this town have taken two reductions since the war, and at the wage conferences in the last two or three years, they were turned down in their request for an increase in wages.

"Now these are the people who pay all city increases, and, in fact, all costs of any overhead expense to the city. Now do you think it would be right for me as a representative of the people to vote to increase wages when the man who pays the bill has taken reductions? I do not.

"You will notice by the present tax duplicate that it has jumped from $20.20 to $23.70 per $1,000 valuation an increase of $3.40. The city also owes a lot of back bills such as gas, electric, sidewalk, dredging the wharf and I feel that we should pay what we owe before we take on any more expense that we can rightfully get along without.

"I also think that the city fire department, and police department shou'd be built up to the standard that this town should have. By that I mean more men physically fit for both of these departments, and not by raising the wages. Bring the department up to that point of efficiency that when the time comes it can justly demand more money for its labors. The same holds good in the police department or in fact any department of the city, let the departments make themselves so efficient that they can demand more money, the city is no different than any corporation in this respect.

"The employes at the water works are now getting as much and in some cases more than the average wage for this class of work. The engineers are getting 10 cents per hour more than the engineers scale calls for. The firemen, oilers, and filter house employes, who are all practically classed as labor are getting as much if not more than the average manufacturer is paying his labor. Now don't you think this is fair?

"The city employe loses no time unless of his own accord. He knows at the end of every month just what he has to come and go on. The men who are paying this bill do not know from one day to the next where he stands and is uncertain whether he is going to work three or six days from pay to pay.

"Another thing: Some of these employes asking increases do not live within the city limits, and I do not feel justified in voting the people's money to persons who are not inclined to live in the city when they are on a city job.

Taking it all in all, I feel that most all city employes are receiving as much as the average worker, and the entire finance committee felt that it could not recommend any increases at this time and for that reason they made this recommendation to council.

"Our millage for the coming year will be little more than it was last year, so you can see the position it puts council in. I know that they want to be fair with all concerned in this matter but at the same time they want to be fair with the citizens at large.

"Hoping I have made myself clear on this matter, and I assure you that I will continue to serve you to the best of my ability as long as I am a member of council,

I remain,

"Very Truly Yours;

THOMAS FARRALL"

R. W. Sample, Market street shoe dealer, will accept contributions in money, clothing and household furnishings for the family if left at his store during business hours.

"This is a most worthy case," said McCoy today.

The Salvation Army, Red Cross, Elks' lodge, Nazarene church, City Federation of Women's clubs, Mrs. R. H. Leeper, public health nurse, and Dr. John Fraser, city health commissioner, have also assisted the family.

Field Major Hughes said the Salvation Army had supplied coal, clothing and groceries and contributed $25 toward the eldest son's funeral expenses when the family lived on the houseboat, and since their removal to Rock alley had given them a gas stove.

The Nazarene church also helped them financially and gave them clothing.

Dr. Fraser has given medical services, while nursing attention was provided by Mrs. Leeper.

The family formerly resided in Chester where the father and husband was employed in a pottery. About a year ago their house, with all its furnishings, was destroyed by fire. Rood brought his wife and family to East Liverpool when work at the pottery was uncertain, and during the summer was employed on an ice wagon for the Crockery City Ice & Products company. He has held no steady job for several weeks, he claims.

74 CONVERTS IN CAMPAIGN

Revival Services on Pleasant Heights Will Close Tomorrow.

Seventy-four conversions have resulted from the revival campaign, which has been in progress at the Pleasant Heights Baptist mission, during the last two weeks under the direction of Evangelist Mel Morris, of Greensboro, Md. The campaign is said to have been the most successful on the hill top district for many years.

The meetings will come to a close tomorrow with services at 2:45 and 7:30 p. m. Rev. Mr. Morris will preach on the subject, "Bible Sanctification at Perpetual Holiness," at the afternoon service and his evening topic will be "The S. O. S. Call."

The evangelist will occupy the pulpit of the First Baptist church at 11 o'clock Sunday morning, his subject being "Divine Healing."

Miss Jean B. Mackey, evangelistic singer, of New Cumberland, will render special solo numbers at all services.

TWO DIE FROM CARBON MONOXIDE

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 18.—Mrs. Carrie Wolfe and Miss Mary E. Parsons, Ripley, W. Va., were dead here today, the victims of monoxide gas fumes from a small heating stove. Mrs. Wolfe is the wife of J. L. Wolfe, assistant state attorney general. The bodies were found fully clad lying across a bed, by Wolfe when he returned home.

Testimony Hits Lengel

"Mazer came in with his police dog and talked about it with Rudner," the witness said.

"Did Rudner have a police dog?"

"Yes."

"Do you know Chief S. A. Lengel?"

"No."

Kuntz testified he knew nothing about any long distance telephone calls to the store. The prosecution alleged McDermott made two telephone calls to Rudner.

Never Saw McDermott in Store.

Willard said he was "about 17 years old."

"Did you ever see McDermott in Rudner's store or talking to Rudner?"

"No," Fiscus answered.

Under cross-examination, Fiscus said he had seen Louis Mazer, alleged Canton "jungle king," in Rudner's store twice.

"Do you remember talking with Lawton Smart, your boy friend, and saying that you saw McDermott and Mazer go out of the store?"

"I don't remember," answered Fiscus.

G. G. Zell, Canton carpenter, was the next witness. He testified that he had a "traffic argument with Ben Rudner and another man," and went to police headquarters with Rudner to settle it on a Sunday in July.

"Was this man, McDermott, the one with Rudner that Sunday?"

"He was not," Zell replied.

The prosecution had introduced testimony alleging that Rudner had visited police headquarters with McDermott the Sunday before the murder.

Ben's Brother Testifies.

Eddie Rudner, brother of Ben, stepped out of the courtroom wings and repeated his performance of yesterday before another witness. He turned around slowly, produced a straw hat, put it jauntily on his head and posed in various postures.

"No," Zell replied.

Under cross-examination Zell admitted that McDermott looks something like the man that was with Rudner.

Ed Rudner, brother of Ben, was the next witness called. He testified to being the one with Ben Rudner at the police station when they became involved in a traffic argument with Zell the Sunday before the murder.

Under cross-examination, Ed Rudner admitted he was indicted in 1920 on a federal charge of liquor conspiracy and pleaded guilty five years later.

Contradicts State Witnesses.

Mrs. Rudner, an attractive woman in the thirties, testified to her husband going to the hospital on July 9 for a felon on his finger. Rudner stayed in bed all day, Mrs. Rudner said.

It was on July 9 that Steve Kaschok testified for the state that he and McDermott drove from Massillon to Canton where McDermott said he had a "job." The prosecution alleged McDermott was hired by Rudner.

Mrs. Rudner testified that on July 10 she and her husband and another woman drove to Brewster.

It was on this date that McDermott had automobiled with Peggy Cavanaugh, Cleveland, waitress, to Akron and Massillon "to borrow money, according to state testimony. The prosecution has attempted to show McDermott had been in communication with Rudner and received money for the alleged Mellett murder.

Never Saw Pat.

"Never," Mrs. Rudner answered firmly.

"Did you ever see Pat in your husband's store?"

"Never."

The witness said she was in the store every day.

J. W. P. Smith, merchant police officer of Massillon, underwent a heavy cross-examination regarding his testimony of Rudner's activities before and after the murder.

The state kept hammering away at the statement of the witness that he saw Rudner on the street in Massillon at 4 a. m. the morning after the Mellett murder.

"You never saw him so early in the morning before?"

"Yes, when he went fishing."

The witness said he and Rudner visited Canton police headquarters that morning and spoke to Chief S. A. Lengel.

Detective is Witness.

M. C. Jacobs, Canton detective, the next witness, told of arriving at the murder scene at 12:30, midnight, shortly after the crime.

"Mellett said the police had assassinated his brother and that if we arrested Chief Lengel, Ben Clark and others, we'd find out who had done the murder," Jacobs testified. Court was then adjourned until Monday morning.

Albert Lasker, before he became fabulously rich, would pacify an ambitious man, asking more money, by making him assistant vice president at the same old pay. Farmers say you can't do that to them. They demand a federal farm board "to aid in the disposition of surplus farm products."

THE TURKS, stripping the veil from women's faces, "because the women's can't breathe," making joke of the caliph, erecting statues of Kemal Pasha, in defiance of Mohammed's law, think little of churches. That happens in revolutionary times, in the French revolution, and now in Mexico.

TURKEY will make a dance hall of the magnificient church of St. Sophia, built by Constantine, just 1,600 years ago. Since taking Constantinople the Turks have used St. Sophia as a mosque where Mohammedans pray, leaving shoes at the door.

CONSTANTINOPLE Christians were promised when the Turks came that at the last moment angels would appear before St. Sophia and destroy the heathen. It turned out otherwise, the heathen appeared and destroyed the Christians.

Confessional Seal Holds Identity of Murderer of Boy

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—The Rev. L. J. Sweeney cannot give police any aid in capturing the degenerate who slew Walter Schmith, aged 6, because the man's story of the brutal crime was told in the confessional, it was declared today at the office of Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago.

The oath of a Catholic priest prevents him from disclosing in any manner the secrets of the confessional and even if called upon to identify the murderer, he would be forced to remain silent.

Handicapped by this veil of secrecy police and hundreds of aroused residents of the fashionable North Shore were combing the district today for a former hostler at the riding academy where the lad was found dying.

GOVERNOR GORE SEEKS REPORTS

Governor Gore yesterday established another executive precedent when he wrote letters to the heads of all departments of the state government and to the heads of all state institutions, requiring them to file with him by January 1, 1927, a financial statement, showing the condition of their departments as of that date.

The governor's letter asks for detailed statements, showing not only balances left in appropriations for the several departments and institutions, but the names of all employes, the duties, the amount of money paid for their servicese and the names and amounts of all extra employes.

On the reports from the departments Governor Gore will base his plans for instituting economy in the state government. This economy may be effected, the executive believes by readjustments of salaries and other departmental expenses.

SOLON FARRALL EXPLAINS WAGE BOOST REFUSAL

CITY SHOULD PAY ITS BILLS, HE DECLARES

Gives Reasons for Rejecting Municipal Employes' Request.

WRITES LETTER

Finance Committee Reported Unfavorably on Proposal.

Declaring that potters have taken two wage reductions since the war, Solon Thomas Farrall, chairman of the finance committee of city council, outlined his reasons for opposing wage increases to city employes in a letter today to the Review-Tribune.

The councilman suggests that the city first pay its gas, electric, sidewalk, dredging the wharf and other bills "before we take on any more expense" Employes of the water works department, who petitioned for a wage boost, "are getting as much and in some cases more than the average wage for this class of work," Farrall says.

Here is his letter:

"Editor of the Review-Tribune:

"Another thing: Some of these employes asking increases do not live within the city limits, and I do not feel justified in voting the people's money to persons who are not inclined to live in the city when they are on a city job.

Taking it all in all, I feel that most all city employes are receiving as much as the average worker, and the entire finance committee felt that it could not recommend any increases at this time and for that reason they made this recommendation to council.

R. W. Sample, Market street shoe dealer, will accept contributions in money, clothing and household furnishings for the family if left at his store during business hours.

"This is a most worthy case," said McCoy today.

The Salvation Army, Red Cross, Elks' lodge, Nazarene church, City Federation of Women's clubs, Mrs. R. H. Leeper, public health nurse, and Dr. John Fraser, city health commissioner, have also assisted the family.

Field Major Hughes said the Salvation Army had supplied coal, clothing and groceries and contributed $25 toward the eldest son's funeral expenses when the family lived on the houseboat, and since their removal to Rock alley had given them a gas stove.

The Nazarene church also helped them financially and gave them clothing.

Dr. Fraser has given medical services, while nursing attention was provided by Mrs. Leeper.

The family formerly resided in Chester where the father and husband was employed in a pottery. About a year ago their house, with all its furnishings, was destroyed by fire. Rood brought his wife and family to East Liverpool when work at the pottery was uncertain, and during the summer was employed on an ice wagon for the Crockery City Ice & Products company. He has held no steady job for several weeks, he claims.

Revival Services on Pleasant Heights Will Close Tomorrow.

Seventy-four conversions have resulted from the revival campaign, which has been in progress at the Pleasant Heights Baptist mission, during the last two weeks under the direction of Evangelist Mel Morris, of Greensboro, Md. The campaign is said to have been the most successful on the hill top district for many years.

The meetings will come to a close tomorrow with services at 2:45 and 7:30 p. m. Rev. Mr. Morris will preach on the subject, "Bible Sanctification at Perpetual Holiness," at the afternoon service and his evening topic will be "The S. O. S. Call."

Miss Jean B. Mackey, evangelistic singer, of New Cumberland, will render special solo numbers at all services.

TWO DIE FROM CARBON MONOXIDE

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 18.—Mrs. Carrie Wolfe and Miss Mary E. Parsons, Ripley, W. Va., were dead here today, the victims of monoxide gas fumes from a small heating stove. Mrs. Wolfe is the wife of J. L. Wolfe, assistant state attorney general. The bodies were found fully clad lying across a bed, by Wolfe when he returned home.

"Our millage for the coming year will be little more than it was last year, so you can see the position it puts council in. I know that they want to be fair with all concerned in this matter but at the same time they want to be fair with the citizens at large.

"Hoping I have made myself clear on this matter, and I assure you that I will continue to serve you to the best of my ability as long as I am a member of council,

I remain,

"Mazer came in with his police dog and talked about it with Rudner," the witness said.

"Did Rudner have a police dog?"

"Yes."

"Do you know Chief S. A. Lengel?"

"No."

Kuntz testified he knew nothing about any long distance telephone calls to the store. The prosecution alleged McDermott made two telephone calls to Rudner.

Never Saw McDermott in Store.

Willard said he was "about 17 years old."

"Did you ever see McDermott in Rudner's store or talking to Rudner?"

"No," Fiscus answered.

Under cross-examination, Figcus said he had seen Louis Mazer, alleged Canton "jungle king," in Rudner's store twice.

"Do you remember talking with Lawton Smart, your boy friend, and saying that you saw McDermott and Mazer go out of the store?"

"I don't remember," answered Fiscus.

G. G. Zell, Canton carpenter, was the next witness. He testified that he had a "traffic argument with Ben Rudner and another man," and went to police headquarters with Rudner to settle it on a Sunday in July.

"Was this man, McDermott, the one with Rudner that Sunday?"

"He was not," Zell replied.

The prosecution had introduced testimony alleging that Rudner had visited police headquarters with McDermott the Sunday before the murder.

Ben's Brother Testifies.

Eddie Rudner, brother of Ben, stepped out of the courtroom wings and repeated his performance of yesterday before another witness. He turned around slowly, produced a straw hat, put it jauntily on his head and posed in various postures.

"No," Zell replied.

Under cross-examination Zell admitted that McDermott looks something like the man that was with Rudner

Ed Rudner, brother of Ben, was the next witness called. He testified to being the one with Ben Rudner at the police station when they became involved in a traffic argument with Zell the Sunday before the murder.

Under cross-examination, Ed Rudner admitted he was indicted in 1929 on a federal charge of liquor conspiracy and pleaded guilty five years later.

Howard Getz, Massillon taxicab owner testified to Ben Rudner being treated on July 9 for a sore finger, and to several fishing trips with Rudner

Contradicts State Witnesses.

Mrs. Rudner, an attractive woman in the thirties, testified to her husband going to the hospital on July 9 for a felon on his finger. Rudner stayed in bed all day, Mrs. Rudner said.

It was on July 9 that Steve Kascholk testified for the state that he and McDermott drove from Massillon to Canton where McDermott said he had a "job." The prosecution alleged McDermott was hired by Rudner.

Mrs. Rudner testified that on July 10 she and her husband and another woman drove to Brewster.

It was on this date that McDermott had automobiled with Peggy Cavanaugh, Cleveland, waitress, to Akron and Massillon "to borrow money, according to state testimony. The prosecution has attempted to show McDermott had been in communication with Rudner and received money for the alleged Mellett murder.

Never Saw Pat.

"Did you ever before see this man (Pat McDermott)?" defense counsel asked.

"Never," Mrs. Rudner answered firmly.

"Never."

The witness said she was in the store every day.

J. W. P. Smith, merchant police officer of Massillon, underwent a heavy cross-examination regarding his testimony of Rudner's activities before and after the murder.

The state kept hammering away at the statement of the witness that he saw Rudner on the street in Massillon at 4 a. m. the morning after the Mellett murder.

"You never saw him so early in the morning before?"

"Yes, when he went fishing."

The witness said he and Rudner visited Canton police headquarters that morning and spoke to Chief S. A. Lengel.

Detective is Witness.

M. C. Jacobs, Canton detective, the next witness, told of arriving at the murder scene at 12:30, midnight, shortly after the crime.

"Mellett said the police had assassinated his brother and that if we arrested Chief Lengel, Ben Clark and others, we'd find out who had done the murder," Jacobs testified. Court was then adjourned until Monday morning.

tween Kansas City and Topeko, farmers say they will not take halfway measures in place of their McNary-Haugen bill.

Albert Lasker, before he became fabulously rich, would pacify an ambitious man, asking more money, by making him assistant vice president at the same old pay. Farmers say you can't do that to them. They demand a federal farm board "to aid in the disposition of surplus farm products."

THE TURKS, stripping the veil from women's faces, "because the women's can't breathe," making joke of the caliph, erecting statues of Kemal Pasha, in defiance of Mohammed's law, think little of churches. That happens in revolutionary times, in the French revolution, and now in Mexico.

TURKEY will make a dance hall of the magnificient church of St. Sophia, built by Constantine, just 1,600 years ago. Since taking Constantinople the Turks have used St. Sophia as a mosque where Mohammedans pray, leaving shoes at the door.

CONSTANTINOPLE Christians were promised when the Turks came that at the last moment angels would appear before St. Sophia and destroy the heathen. It turned out otherwise, the heathen appeared and destroyed the Christians.

Those pious ancients little dreamed that their beautiful Byzantine church would one day echo cacophonous foxtrots and jazz.

REVOLT agitates Albania, Balkan country of much brigandage. Skodra is reported occupied by rebels and on fire. Revolution rages in the Argyrocastro region.

You never heard of those places perhaps, but be grateful that Uncle Sam isn't bound by the League of Nations to send men or money to Argyrocastro.

Confessional Seal Holds Identity of Murderer of Boy

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—The Rev. L. J. Sweeney cannot give police any aid in capturing the degenerate who slew Walter Schmith, aged 6, because the man's story of the brutal crime was told in the confessional, it was declared today at the office of Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago.

The oath of a Catholic priest prevents him from disclosing in any manner the secrets of the confessional and even if called upon to identify the murderer, he would be forced to remain silent.

Handicapped by this veil of secrecy police and hundreds of aroused residents of the fashionable North Shore were combing the district today for a former hostler at the riding academy where the lad was found dying.

GOVERNOR GORE SEEKS REPORTS

Governor Gore yesterday established another executive precedent when he wrote letters to the heads of all departments of the state government and to the heads of all state institutions, requiring them to file with him by January 1, 1927, a financial statement, showing the condition of their departments as of that date.

The governor's letter asks for detailed statements, showing not only balances left in appropriations for the several departments and institutions, but the names of all employes, the duties, the amount of money paid for their servicese and the names and amounts of all extra employes.

On the reports from the departments Governor Gore will base his plans for instituting economy in the state government. This economy may be effected, the executive believes by readjustments of salaries and other departmental expenses.

The Old, Old Story

No doubt many of you have heard the story of the man who sold the farm he had lived on for many years and decided to go west in search of gold.

After many years of prospecting in vain he returned home a disappointed man to learn gold had been discovered on the farm he had sold.

The new owner had taken a fortune out of the ground that the former tenant had tramped over for so many years and valued so lightly.

So it is very often in everyday life. We want certain merchandise and go searching in various cities for it only to return and find the very article we wanted here at home marked the same price or perhaps in many instances less. Time, energy and money expended for naught.

Just one more week remains in which to do your Christmas Buying. The merchants of this City urge you to do your buying early in the morning and avoid the rush hours. This will enable the clerks to give you better service and help you to make more careful selections of your Christmas gifts.

The Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction Company will bring you to our doors quickly, safely and comfortably. This company is rendering the best service in its history. Use the cars early in the day and avoid the congested traffic.

GASOLINE TAX MONEY RECEIVED

A check for $10,000 has been received at the county auditor's office from Columbus as the fourth payment of gasoline tax money due Columbiana county. This is the fourth check received from this excise tax in this county this year, each check being for $10,000. The money is placed to the credit of the county road repair fund.

It is thought that another check will be received before February 1st as a final settlement of the excise tax due this county for the calendar period of 1926. At the time the gas tax became a law it was estimated that the return to the county would not be under $40,000 and that the amount might be exceeded.

There is no county record of what "gas" money is forwarded from Columbus to the different taxing districts, this business being done direct between the Columbus tax office and the financial officers of the taxing districts.

CHECKS MAILED FOR SHEEP CLAIMS

The last of the checks for the payment of sheep and animal claims for 1926 have been mailed from the office of County Auditor Elmer E. Walker. A total of $5,613.40 has been paid from the Dog and Kennel fund in the settlement of these claims, that were recently approved by the county commissioners.

Under a law passed by the last legislature, sheep and animal claims are paid annually instead of quarterly as formerly. The Dog and Kennel fund is created through the sale of dog license tags, and after the sheep and animal claims are paid with other deductions allowed by law, the balance of the money in the fund is credited to the county board of education.

Case Settled.

The case of the East Liverpool Motor Car company against R. E. and Ed R. Simms that has been pending in common pleas court since November 24th has been settled at the costs of the defendant. This was an action to recover $212.10 on a note.

Leave to file a petition at once has been granted by the court to the plaintiff in the appeal case of Lloyd Robusch against Louis Howells. The action has been carried to common pleas court on appeal from a lower court.

Awarded Judgment.

Harry Goldwasser has obtained judgment by default on the evidence submitted to the court in his case against Rube Smith, an appeal from a lower court. The judgment is for $380.45 and costs. This case was made a matter of record June 16, 1925.

Court Order Issued.

A decree of foreclosure, order of sale and to marshal leins has been handed down in No. 1 court in the case of the Community bank of East Liverpool against Minta Campbell. This was an action to recover a judgment for $288.05 and interest from June 9, 1926.

Verdict Returned.

The ENTERTAINING ANGEL

By SAMUEL MERWIN

[By Samuel Merwin Released Through Central Press Assn.]

SYNOPSIS:

Julian Reed is wandering southern California in his little roadster. At luncheon in a small restaurant he meets, by chance, a charming, rather wistful young woman. She has missed connections with a troupe of vagabonding actors and he offers to drive her to the troupe's next stopping place, La Jolla. She accepts his offer. Julian meets Watts, the chief of the "Wayside Theatre"; Sadie, an ex-chorus girl, and the rest. Julian comes to the rescue of the troupe financially. Sadie is attracted to him. She tells him how Hester risked everything to try for the leading role in a movie of a play written by "Robert Johns," failed and joined the troupe as a last resort. Julian falls in love with Hester but when she learns of his financial help to Watt she is angry and will have nothing to do with him. Watt offers him a half interest in the enterprise for $4,000 and he accepts. Then he goes away for a time. A new member of the troupe, a college boy, Joe Maybury, is introduced. He, too, loves Hester. She knows he is much younger than she, but to her he is the symbol of youth and his love helps restore her faith in herself. The other members of the troupe understand and pity her. Julian rejoins the troupe at San Diego. Hester has nothing to say to him and walks away when he tries to speak to her. He has bought her a beautiful bracelet, but when she snubs him he thrusts it upon Sadie. Because of his clumsiness in helping with the scenery Joe names Julian "Marceline" after a famous old clown who tries to help but is in everyone's way. Unintentionally at first he calls Julian Marceline to his face, which angers him. Julian has a talk with Hester, telling her he loves her and considers her wonderful. Jim Wilde, stage manager, tells Julian that Lester, the young leading man, is leaving the troupe and that Hester and Watt think Joe may be trained to fill his place. It is decided that he will be given the chance. Joe again calls him "Marceline," whereat Julian warns him not to use that name again, but Joe laughs. Sadie overhears the conversation. Julian writes a play for Hester and is so engrossed he pays attention to no one. The public like Joe's acting, only the members of the troupe realizing his amateurishness and that the applause he receives has gone to his head. Julian gives the finished play to Hester to read, but she gives it to Sadie unread. Sadie gives it to Watt, who props himself comfortably on his cot after the show and prepares to read it. Watt tells Julian that while his play is well written and has literary merit it is not fitted for the stage, but advises him to send it to an eastern publisher. Julian replies that he has already done so, and walks away. Sadie receives some money from her husband and decides to have a party. Hester demurs somewhat, as she has never been on a party where drinks were served, but decides to go, and Sadie realizes with a pang that Hester is slipping. Sadie decides that Hester must not go to the party and that she will show Joe up, so she starts a flirtation with him. She discovers Julian's secret as to his real identity.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE.

Sadie hastily laid a very little mascara on her lashes and a touch of carmine on her lips. Then she sauntered out back, around behind the canvas cyclorama, and took up a position—oh, artlessly enough — between the rear left exit steps and the men's tent. The property man was quietly gathering up his mess of junk. Under the switchboard light the electrician, sitting on a bit of plank, threw her a good-humored wink. In a moment Joe would pass this way . . . .

Soon he came. Sadie's face was demurely pretty, her eyes sparkling.

"Here's ten," she whispered, and pressed a note into his hand. I'll meet you after the show out on the driveway. I thought maybe you'd want to get the stuff first."

He crumpled the note in his hand, hesitating, then strolled with her out of the light.

"How bout the others?" he asked.

"Oh," said he. Then, "All right. It'll likely be about midnight before I can get back with it."

"Don't be too long. I'll wander out there about a quarter of twelve and wait for you. The others needn't know."

He looked down into the pretty face and softly chuckled. Sadie was, after all, a fascinating creature. Snappy. Just the girl for a party.

"All right," he said again, and disappeared into the men's tent. Different girls for different uses! Why not?

Sadie turned away with a twisted smile. Her little plan had worked out with surprising ease.

It wasn't over simple to slip away unseen. Though, why should she care? Why not brazen it out? So she did brazen it out. Deliberately got into her street clothes while the other girls were going to bed. Grace was burning to ask questions, but found no opening. Hester merely looked. The only remark from Sadie herself.

She walked quickly out toward the entrance, past the shadowy rows of chairs. The men's tent was closed. The stage curtains were drawn, and the boys of the crew snugly within. As she moved away, the lights went out. Very soon Murry Watt would be trumpeting to the world from his tent behind the cyclorama.

She sauntered, smiling softly in the dark, along the curving, perfectly kept macadam driveway under the live oaks. The scent of roses touched her spirit as with a pleasing drug. After all . . .. after all . . .. you had to stir about now and then. And there was a zest, not untouched with lively mockery, in the thought of showing the boy up. She knew only too well how to do that. Oh, she knew.

It was nearly twelve. Her own small feet made the only near sound; from a distance floated on the chill air the faint hum of the city. A faraway deep-throated bell sounded twelve times. She folded her arms across her breast for warmth. You really needed furs out here.

Standing under a tree near a splendid gate of masonry and iron-work she commanded the boulevard. At intervals, a taxi sped by. At the first sound of each her pulse quickened. But one by one they passed. A policeman appeared, walking slowly by. Sadie stood close within the shadow of the tree.

Ten minutes passed. Fifteen. How cold it was! Her spirit, so recently edged with a piquant mockery, was sinking a little. And then a little more. Twenty minutes. Half an hour. The edge was much duller now. Sadie couldn't be angry, not deeply and never long, but she could be uncomfortable. Her feet were tired now. And that deepening chill promised soon to reach her bones. Softly, she hummed a little of the dissonantly provocative "Arkansas Blues."

Finally, a long time later, she heard that distant bell strike the hour of one. "Oh hell!" she remarked, with a shrug, and turned back toward the canvas enclosure. Only once did she look back. The boulevard was empty, just a wild expanse of dead pavement stretching away under its double row of lights. She turned then and ran. Ran to warm her blood. She even laughed a little ruefully. She undressed quickly and quietly in the dark and snuggled under the blankets.

A vagrant, but suddenly warm, memory of her husband crept in among her thoughts. He'd never been much good. He was a dancer. She wondered what he was doing with himself. It was decent of him to send the check. He must have experienced a warm little wave of feeling for her. It was rather pleasant to think of. Well, life was like that. Comings and goings and queer unexpected incidents. You took it as it came. And she still had thirty dollars. That was something. A pleasant thoght, indeed, to fall asleep on.

The troupe slept late that next morning, as they had only to move through the city to the big hotel. Sadie was the last one up. When she opened her eyes the others had scattered to find breakfast. She went over to a convenient lunch room. Some of the crew were there, and she caught the talk about Joe. He hadn't appeared at all. His cot was unrumpled. Sadie's eyes sparkled with that same amused mockery. After all, perhaps she had succeeded in making a monkey of the boy and had her sleep besides. It might yet prove worth ten dollars. She didn't mind that. She glanced thoughtfully down at her bracelet. It was money in the bank, of course. Worth hundreds of dollars, surely. With that at hand, she wouldn't starve between jobs. She thought of Julian, and her color rose. What a situation! What a story, really!

At packing-up time Joe was still absent. One of the other boys had to fold up his bedding roll and his cot. There was surprise, and some grumbling. Hester kept by herself. Whatever her thoughts might be, her face told nothing. She spoke, late in the afternoon, of a recurrence of her headache. That was all.

When evening came around, and there was still no Joe, the surprise mounted into a moment of consternation. But Jim, at the last moment, made up and went on in his place. There was little that Jim couldn't do, in a pinch. All went with smoothness enough. The audience, smartly dressed and eager to be amused, laughed and applauded in all the usual places.

"Better to Have Loved and Won" was reached at last. Jim waited until the last possible moment, and then got into Joe's costume. There was nothing else to do. Hester was quietly ready. The play went on.

Julian wandered about. There was no work for him during the progress of the play. For a time he stood with Sadie behind the audience, but had little to say. Sadie, too, was distrait. She carried an unopened letter in her hand. Then, restless and more than a little his other forlorn self, he walked back behind the stage, standing by Murry Watt's tent. After a time, he became conscious of two other figures moving through the shadows there. The nearer one was a tall young man with big shoulders and an easy careless walk. He peered closely. It would be Joe. Involuntarily, his nerves tightened. The boy's unexplained absence had been a relief . . . . The other, smaller person was Sadie. She was hurrying to catch Joe. Then she spoke, guardedly, as they did backstage during a performance. The instinct to be quiet governed every small emergency.

"Joe, you devil!"

Orvill Jarvis, whose wife, Sarah C. Jarvis, obtained a decree of divorce April 24, 1924, and who was cited to appear before Judge David H. Thomas to show cause why he should not be declared in contemnt for the failure to pay the alimony order of the court, was given a hearing in common pleas No. 2, was ordered to satisfy all payments and was released. Mrs. Jarvis was represented by Attorney W. A. O'Grady.

GASOLINE TAX MONEY RECEIVED

A check for $10,000 has been received at the county auditor's office from Columbus as the fourth payment of gasoline tax money due Columbiana county. This is the fourth check received from this excise tax in this county this year, each check being for $10,000. The money is placed to the credit of the county road repair fund.

It is thought that another check will be received before February 1st as a final settlement of the excise tax due this county for the calendar period of 1926. At the time the gas tax became a law it was estimated that the return to the county would not be under $40,000 and that the amount might be exceeded.

There is no county record of what "gas" money is forwarded from Columbus to the different taxing districts, this business being done direct between the Columbus tax office and the financial officers of the taxing districts.

CHECKS MAILED FOR SHEEP CLAIMS

The last of the checks for the payment of sheep and animal claims for 1926 have been mailed from the office of County Auditor Elmer E. Walker. A total of $5,613.40 has been paid from the Dog and Kennel fund in the settlement of these claims, that were recently approved by the county commissioners.

Under a law passed by the last legislature, sheep and animal claims are paid annually instead of quarterly as formerly. The Dog and Kennel fund is created through the sale of dog license tags, and after the sheep and animal claims are paid with other deductions allowed by law, the balance of the money in the fund is credited to the county board of education.

Case Settled.

The case of the East Liverpool Motor Car company against R. E. and Ed R. Simms that has been pending in common pleas court since November 24th has been settled at the costs of the defendant. This was an action to recover $212.10 on a note.

Leave to file a petition at once has been granted by the court to the plaintiff in the appeal case of Lloyd Robusch against Louis Howells. The action has been carried to common pleas court on appeal from a lower court.

Awarded Judgment.

Harry Goldwasser has obtained judgment by default on the evidence submitted to the court in his case against Rube Smith, an appeal from a lower court. The judgment is for $280.45 and costs. This case was made a matter of record June 16, 1925.

Court Order Issued.

A decree of foreclosure, order of sale and to marshal leins has been handed down in No. 1 court in the case of the Community bank of East Liverpool against Minta Campbell. This was an action to recover a judgment for $288.05 and interest from June 9, 1926.

Verdict Returned.

A verdict against Frank Bosco for $18.52 has been rendered in No. 2 court in the case of William Fitzpatrick, who defended an appeal from a justice court.

PENSION MONEY IS DISTRIBUTED

A distribution of $3,600 has just been made in this county to those who are entitled to receive mothers' pensions. Several months ago the county commissioners transferred $4,000 from the "blind" fund to this fund in order that such needy persons should be assisted.

SYNOPSIS:

Julian Reed is wandering southern California in his little roadster. At luncheon in a small restaurant he meets, by chance, a charming, rather wistful young woman. She has missed connections with a troupe of vagabonding actors and he offers to drive her to the troupe's next stopping place, La Jolla. She accepts his offer. Julian meets Watts, the chief of the "Wayside Theatre"; Sadie, an ex-chorus girl, and the rest. Julian comes to the rescue of the troupe financially. Sadie is attracted to him. She tells him how Hester risked everything to try for the leading role in a movie of a play written by "Robert Johns," failed and joined the troupe as a last resort. Julian falls in love with Hester but when she learns of his financial help to Watt she is angry and will have nothing to do with him. Watt offers him a half interest in the enterprise for $4,000 and he accepts. Then he goes away for a time. A new member of the troupe, a college boy, Joe Maybury, is introduced. He, too, loves Hester. She knows he is much younger than she, but to her he is the symbol of youth and his love helps restore her faith in herself. The other members of the troupe understand and pity her. Julian rejoins the troupe at San Diego. Hester has nothing to say to him and walks away when he tries to speak to her. He has bought her a beautiful bracelet, but when she snubs him he thrusts it upon Sadie. Because of his clumsiness in helping with the scenery Joe names Julian "Marceline" after a famous old clown who tries to help but is in everyone's way. Unintentionally at first he calls Julian Marceline to his face, which angers him. Julian has a talk with Hester, telling her he loves her and considers her wonderful. Jim Wilde, stage manager, tells Julian that Lester, the young leading man, is leaving the troupe and that Hester and Watt think Joe may be trained to fill his place. It is decided that he will be given the chance. Joe again calls him "Marceline," whereat Julian warns him not to use that name again, but Joe laughs. Sadie overhears the conversation. Julian writes a play for Hester and is so engrossed he pays attention to no one. The public like Joe's acting, only the members of the troupe realizing his amateurishness and that the applause he receives has gone to his head. Julian gives the finished play to Hester to read, but she gives it to Sadie unread. Sadie gives it to Watt, who props himself comfortably on his cot after the show and prepares to read it. Watt tells Julian that while his play is well written and has literary merit it is not fitted for the stage, but advises him to send it to an eastern publisher. Julian replies that he has already done so, and walks away. Sadie receives some money from her husband and decides to have a party. Hester demurs somewhat, as she has never been on a party where drinks were served, but decides to go, and Sadie realizes with a pang that Hester is slipping. Sadie decides that Hester must not go to the party and that she will show Joe up, so she starts a flirtation with him. She discovers Julian's secret as to his real identity.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE.

Sadie hastily laid a very little mascara on her lashes and a touch of carmine on her lips. Then she sauntered out back, around behind the canvas cyclorama, and took up a position—oh, artlessly enough — between the rear left exit steps and the men's tent. The property man was quietly gathering up his mess of junk. Under the switchboard light the electrician, sitting on a bit of plank, threw her a good-humored wink. In a moment Joe would pass this way . . . .

Soon he came. Sadie's face was demurely pretty, her eyes sparkling.

"Here's ten," she whispered, and pressed a note into his hand. I'll meet you after the show out on the driveway. I thought maybe you'd want to get the stuff first."

He crumpled the note in his hand, hesitating, then strolled with her out of the light.

"How bout the others?" he asked.

"Oh," said he. Then, "All right. It'll likely be about midnight before I can get back with it."

"Don't be too long. I'll wander out there about a quarter of twelve and wait for you. The others needn't know."

He looked down into the pretty face and softly chuckled. Sadie was, after all, a fascinating creature. Snappy. Just the girl for a party.

"All right," he said again, and disappeared into the men's tent. Different girls for different uses! Why not?

Sadie turned away with a twisted smile. Her little plan had worked out with surprising ease.

It wasn't over simple to slip away unseen. Though, why should she care? Why not brazen it out? So she did brazen it out. Deliberately got into her street clothes while the other girls were going to bed. Grace was burning to ask questions, but found no opening. Hester merely looked. The only remark from Sadie herself.

She walked quickly out toward the entrance, past the shadowy rows of chairs. The men's tent was closed. The stage curtains were drawn, and the boys of the crew were snugly within. As she moved away, the lights went out. Very soon Murry Watt would be trumpeting to the world from his tent behind the cyclorama.

She sauntered, smiling softly in the dark, along the curving, perfectly kept macadam driveway under the live oaks. The scent of roses touched her spirit as with a pleasing drug. After all . . .. after all . . .. you had to stir about now and then. And there was a zest, not untouched with lively mockery, in the thought of showing the boy up. She knew only too well how to do that. Oh, she knew.

It was nearly twelve. Her own small feet made the only near sound; from a distance floated on the chill air the faint hum of the city. A faraway deep-throated bell sounded twelve times. She folded her arms across her breast for warmth. You really needed furs out here.

Standing under a tree near a splendid gate of masonry and iron-work she commanded the boulevard. At intervals, a taxi sped by. At the first sound of each her pulse quickened. But one by one they passed. A policeman appeared, walking slowly by. Sadie stood close within the shadow of the tree.

Ten minutes passed. Fifteen. How cold it was! Her spirit, so recently edged with a piquant mockery, was sinking a little. And then a little more. Twenty minutes. Half an hour. The edge was much duller now. Sadie couldn't be angry, not deeply and never long, but she could be uncomfortable. Her feet were tired now. And that deepening chill promised soon to reach her bones. Softly, she hummed a little of the dissonantly provocative "Arkansas Blues."

Finally, a long time later, she heard that distant bell strike the hour of one. "Oh hell!" she remarked, with a shrug, and turned back toward the canvas enclosure. Only once did she look back. The boulevard was empty, just a wild expanse of dead pavement stretching away under its double row of lights. She turned then and ran. Ran to warm her blood. She even laughed a little ruefully. She undressed quickly and quietly in the dark and snuggled under the blankets.

A vagrant, but suddenly warm, memory of her husband crept in among her thoughts. He'd never been much good. He was a dancer. She wondered what he was doing with himself. It was decent of him to send the check. He must have experienced a warm little wave of feeling for her. It was rather pleasant to think of. Well, life was like that. Comings and goings and queer unexpected incidents. You took it as it came. And she still had thirty dollars. That was something. A pleasant thoght, indeed, to fall asleep on.

The troupe slept late that next morning, as they had only to move through the city to the big hotel. Sadie was the last one up. When she opened her eyes the others had scattered to find breakfast. She went over to a convenient lunch room. Some of the crew were there, and she caught the talk about Joe. He hadn't appeared at all. His cot was unrumpled. Sadie's eyes sparkled with that same amused mockery. After all, perhaps she had succeeded in making a monkey of the boy and had her sleep besides. It might yet prove worth ten dollars. She didn't mind that. She glanced thoughtfully down at her bracelet. It was money in the bank, of course. Worth hundreds of dollars, surely. With that at hand she wouldn't starve between jobs. She thought of Julian, and her color rose. What a situation! What a story, really!

At packing-up time Joe was still absent. One of the other boys had to fold up his bedding roll and his cot. There was surprise, and some grumbling. Hester kept by herself. Whatever her thoughts might be, her face told nothing. She spoke, late in the afternoon, of a recurrence of her headache. That was all.

When evening came around, and there was still no Joe, the surprise mounted into a moment of consternation. But Jim, at the last moment, made up and went on in his place. There was little that Jim couldn't do, in a pinch. All went with smoothness enough. The audience, smartly dressed and eager to be amused, laughed and applauded in all the usual places.

"Better to Have Loved and Won" was reached at last. Jim waited until the last possible moment, and then got into Joe's costume. There was nothing else to do. Hester was quietly ready. The play went on.

Julian wandered about. There was no work for him during the progress of the play. For a time he stood with Sadie behind the audience, but had little to say. Sadie, too, was distrait. She carried an unopened letter in her hand. Then, restless and more than a little his other forlorn self, he walked back behind the stage, standing by Murry Watt's tent. After a time, he became conscious of two other figures moving through the shadows there. The nearer one was a tall young man with big shoulders and an easy careless walk. He peered closely. It would be Joe. Involuntarily, his nerves tightened. The boy's unexplained absence had been a relief . . . . The other, smaller person was Sadie. She was hurrying to catch Joe. Then she spoke, guardedly, as they did backstage during a performance. The instinct to be quiet governed every small emergency.

"Joe, you devil!"

Elks Drop League Opener, 37-27; Highs Lose To Marshall

Antlers Stage Fine Battle But Fail To Shake Jinx On Shots

Lack of Team Work, Result of Short Space of Time for Practice, Handicaps Local Passers; Play Tonight at Damascus.

TROTTING out a collection of individual stars that probably would rate as the class of the entire circuit, but revealing the effects of insufficient practices together, as a team, because of the short space of time permitted for drill work, the East Liverpool Elks dropped a 37 to 27 decision to the East Palestine Paragons last night at the high school in the inaugural Columbiana County Amateur Basketball league here. The contest also provided the East Palestine quint with its first taste of league combat.

Despite a brilliant and consistent battle which they waged from the first whistle to the last, the Antlers continually were dogged by a hoodoo jinx, shot after shot going astray and even in the concluding few minutes when the team finally got going at something near the stride that it certainly should show with a week or two more of play, the locals, with victory, or at least a tie, only a matter of 10 points away, or five field goals, the timer's whistle blew out their hopes.

In Reese, Clark, Howard, McConville and Cox, Coach Bill Powell sent out a strong defensive five at the out set of the game that held the victors to a 3-2 count in the first quarter. But the Paragons began to find the baskets on long shots, and some of these long-arced heaves certainly were blessed, and the Elks' mentor sent out a second quint in Wilson, Wain, Wilde, Canne and Anderson. The Paragons were still dropping in those long range attempts, and the half ended with the visitors on the long end of a 20 to 7 score.

Wilde, former Geneva college athlete, broke into the scoring in the second quarter with a field goal, contributed two more in the second half and generally played a heady game considering the fact that last night he had the ball in his hands for the first time, in actual play, this year.

The Elks outscored the visitors in the second half, and missed enough long and short shots to triple the count. Around the rim or off the edge of the hoops the ball rolled and bounced. Too much hurry on goal throws in an effort to catch up with the Paragons may have accounted in part for some of the misses.

Clark went back into the game in the second half and the former Ohio State man, whose shots rained off the hoops in the first half, connected three times safely. Canne sank three and Anderson contributed another.

Coach Powell had nothing but praise for the suqad following the engagement and expects to get as much good out of the defeat as the East Palestine five. "The bad one is out of their system now and we can get going," he says.

The squad, shifted about as it was, did remarkably well. Reese and Clark worked well together at forwards while Howard, McConville and Cox formed a defensive trio that permitted the visitors to score three points in that first quarter. Hamilton later relieved Cox and held to the pace until the other suqad took up the burden.

The Elks, at frequent intervals, flashed some brilliant pass-work, which, if maintained through the game, would have produced a different ending.

Tonight the squad will embark on its first road trip, being scheduled to play at Damascus.

INSIDE Ggolf

By CHESTER HORTON.

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

I have in mind as I write, this a golfer who plays in the 80's who could just as well play 10 to 15 strokes better—IF he would take pains and care with each shot. This fellow takes plenty of pains and care with his drive, and he hits beauties. But he is at that stage where a 240-yard drive satisfies him. A couple years ago he said: "Show me how to hit a drive 250 yards and I'll ask nothing else of golf." Apparently he told the truth, for since I taught him how to do that he goes about his iron shots with apparently no desire except to get to the next tee, and yet he can make good iron shots because his form with the wood, of course, stands him in good stead with any iron. Good golf calls for care and pains with all shots—not with some of them. This lesson every good golfer has learned. It is one of the tough lessons to learn, too, but learn it early. Even if you rank as but an average player now pains and care taken with each shot will in itself improve your game.

The players will get away on the second 18 holes today and tomorrow the final 36 will be played.

BUSHEY GRAHAM LOSES DECISION

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Bushey Graham, Utica, N. Y., star, was a dual victim of the "jinx year" and the superior attack of his opponent last night and, at the end of ten rounds at Madison Square Garden, the unanimous decision was rendered Graham deserved to lose, for he let Canzoneri take the play away from him in the last four rounds, after having a clear lead on points up to the sixth.

Only the fact that the principals fought at catchweights probably will save Graham his championship shot with Charley Phil Rosenberg in the same ring on January 7.

Fifth City Quint's Rally In Last Half Overcomes Ceramics

East Liverpool Lads Run up 10-7 Score to Lead at Half, But Miss Shots in Final Minutes; Meet Rocky River Tonight.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 18.—By the narrowest margin possible—one point—Coach N. F. Lorah's East Liverpool high school quint lost a tough one to John Marshall here last night in the first game of their two-day Cleveland barnstorming trip. The final count was 19-18.

The Ceramic City contingent outplayed the Marshall passers during the first period and the early section of the second half, but in the concluding quarter, when the Marshall lads began to overhaul them, finally going into the lead, East Liverpool's shots failed to connect with the accuracy that marked their efforts in the opening half, when they led by a 10-7 score.

A bevy of foul attempts that the team had been making in the early stages failed to connect in the final quarter, which also counted against the Blue and White's chances.

Captain Jimmy Hamilton played his usual good floor game and dropped in five foul goals. He gave fans a thrill in the last minute when he attempted a long one that hit the rim, whirled around and then bounced out.

Wildblood, who broke in at a forward in the second half played a fine game. Tom Pusey's injured leg failed to prevent him from contributing his customary brand of play.

The East Liverpool team will go on to Rocky River tonight for its second game.

Elks Drop League Opener, 37-27; Highs Lose To Marshall

Antlers Stage Fine Battle But Fail To Shake Jinx On Shots

Lack of Team Work, Result of Short Space of Time for Practice, Handicaps Local Passers; Play Tonight at Damascus.

TROTTING out a collection of individual stars that probably would rate as the class of the entire circuit, but revealing the effects of insufficient practices together, as a team, because of the short space of time permitted for drill work, the East Liverpool Elks dropped a 37 to 27 decision to the East Palestine Paragons last night at the high school in the inaugural Columbiana County Amateur Basketball league here. The contest also provided the East Palestine quint with its first taste of league combat.

Despite a brilliant and consistent battle which they waged from the first whistle to the last, the Antlers continually were dogged by a hoodoo jinx, shot after shot going astray and even in the concluding few minutes when the team finally got going at something near the stride that it certainly should show with a week or two more of play, the locals, with victory, or at least a tie, only a matter of 10 points away, or five field goals, the timer's whistle blew out their hopes.

In Reese, Clark, Howard, McConville and Cox, Coach Bill Powell sent out a strong defensive five at the out set of the game that held the victors to a 3-2 count in the first quarter. But the Paragons began to find the baskets on long shots, and some of these long-arced heaves certainly were blessed, and the Elks' mentor sent out a second quint in Wilson, Wain, Wilde, Canne and Anderson. The Paragons were still dropping in those long range attempts, and the half ended with the visitors on the long end of a 20 to 7 score.

Wilde, former Geneva college athlete, broke into the scoring in the second quarter with a field goal, contributed two more in the second half and generally played a heady game considering the fact that last night he had the ball in his hands for the first time, in actual play, this year.

The Elks outscored the visitors in the second half, and missed enough long and short shots to triple the count. Around the rim or off the edge of the hoops the ball rolled and bounced. Too much hurry on goal throws in an effort to catch up with the Paragons may have accounted in part for some of the misses.

Clark went back into the game in the second half and the former Ohio State man, whose shots rained off the hoops in the first half, connected three times safely. Canne sank three and Anderson contributed another.

Coach Powell had nothing but praise for the suqad following the engagement and expects to get as much good out of the defeat as the East Palestine five. "The bad one is out of their system now and we can get going," he says.

The squad, shifted about as it was, did remarkably well. Reese and Clark worked well together at forwards while Howard, McConville and Cox formed a defensive trio that permitted the visitors to score three points in that first quarter. Hamilton later relieved Cox and held to the pace until the other suqad took up the burden.

The Elks, at frequent intervals, flashed some brilliant pass-work, which, if maintained through the game, would have produced a different ending.

Tonight the squad will embark on its first road trip, being scheduled to play at Damascus.

CERAMIC BOOKS GRIFFITH HIT

Murder Mystery in Monday and Tuesday Picture.

After all, what's a murder mystery, compared to the fact that one has theatre tickets in his pocket?

Anyhow, that's what Raymond Griffith thought when he was called on in "You'd Be Surprised," to solve a problem in fifteen minutes. Whether he did it or not will be told on the screen at the Ceramic theatre Monday and Tuesday.

Griffith didn't know anything about solving mystery-murders, but he did have to see that show. As a result he showed a burst of speed which made Sherlock Holmes look sick. And incidentally, he met Dorothy Sebastian, and after that neither theatre tickets nor anything else mattered.

"You'd Be Surprised," is one of the most laughable, thrilling films of the year.

Raymond Griffith has attained the impossible in making you laugh and gasp at the same time. Incidentally, he has asked each member of the audience, as a personal favor to him, not to reveal the end of the story.

The Community Bank will loan you money to pay your taxes.

Murder Mystery in Monday and Tuesday Picture.

After all, what's a murder mystery, compared to the fact that one has theatre tickets in his pocket?

Anyhow, that's what Raymond Griffith thought when he was called on in "You'd Be Surprised," to solve a problem in fifteen minutes. Whether he did it or not will be told on the screen at the Ceramic theatre Monday and Tuesday.

Griffith didn't know anything about solving mystery-murders, but he did have to see that show. As a result he showed a burst of speed which made Sherlock Holmes look sick. And incidentally, he met Dorothy Sebastian, and after that neither theatre tickets nor anything else mattered.

"You'd Be Surprised," is one of the most laughable, thrilling films of the year.

Raymond Griffith has attained the impossible in making you laugh and gasp at the same time. Incidentally, he has asked each member of the audience, as a personal favor to him, not to reveal the end of the story.

The Community Bank will loan you money to pay your taxes.

Wide Kansas prairies, huge Texas counties, Fifth ave. New York; Milwaukee's lake front are inhabited by women with bright pink silk stockings and their knees showing.

It is almost impossible for anyone to escape having food stains on clothing at some time or other.

School Teacher Starts Yule Fund For Fire Victims

Miss Rubiena Ikirt, high school teacher, today mailed a check for $5 to The Review-Tribune as the start of a Christmas fund for members of the Clarence Boyce family, Lisbon, whose home was destroyed by fire Thursday morning.

The money will be turned over to the Red Cross, which is investigating the needs of the family.

The Salvation Army has supplied the fire victims with groceries and clothing.

16 TOLL LINES ARE CRIPPLED

Cleveland and Pittsburgh Division Train Crews and Youngstown and Ohio River Road Motormen Report No Tie-up.

Gas for East Liverpool district potteries was shut off and street car service and long distance telephone communication were crippled today as a result of zero temperatures in the Ohio Valley last night.

Trolley wires snapped near the "red steps," Pennsylvania avenue, and also near Port Homer, stalling cars on interurban and city lines early today. The break on Pennsylvania avenue was located by men sent from the car barns at 5:30 o'clock and was immediately repaired, cars starting to operate at 6:10 o'clock.

The break near Port Homer was not found until later. The first interurban car from East Liverpool to Steubenville reached the down river city at 8:30 o'clock, the first eastbound car arrived here at the same time. The first car to Beaver was about a half hour late. Many pottery and mill workers were late because of the tie-up in transportation service.

One of the trolley wires across the Jethro fill snapped about 1 o'clock this morning, but this break was immediate d'scovered and repaired.

Mercury Below Zero.

Sixteen of the 45 toll lines out of East Liverpool were out of commission during the forenoon. Most of these lines were operating at the noon hour, Ohio Bell company officials said.

Trains over the Cleveland and Pittsburgh divis'on were operating on schedule, railroad officials reported. The schedule was also maintained on the Youngstown and Ohio River line between East Liverpool and Salem.

Representatives of the Manufacturers' Light & Heat company notified pottery manufacturers to light no kilns in order to conserve the gas supply for domestic consumers. The ban will probably be lifted ton'ght as the weather forecast is "not quite so cold."

In the hill top and rural sections the mercury is reported to have dropped to three and four degrees below zero, while in the down town section it registered one and two degrees above this mark.

NEW WARRANT FOR ARREST OF CULT LEADER MAY BE ISSUED

FREED ON BOND

Members of Colony Seek Return of Their Money.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Dec. 18.—A new warrant for the arrest of "King" Benjamin Purnell, head of the notorious house of David cult, may be issued here today if he fails to appear in contempt proceedings in federal court in Grand Rapids.

Purnell, recently arrested in the colony after a four-year, world-wide search, is charged with violating an injunction of the court in using cult property to obtain his release on bond after his arrest on charges of attacking former girl members of his cult.

Eliza Bamford and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wright, former members of the colony, who sold all their property and turned over the proceeds to Purnell on admittance to the colony, are suing the bewhiskered "prophet" and his wife, Mary, for return of this money.

H. T. DeWhirst, house of David attorney, early today intimated Purnell cannot go to court in Grand Rapids as he is too ill.

Before the hearing opened, there was talk of another warrant for Purnell if he failed to appear in court.

LENGEL IS HIT IN TESTIMONY AT CANTON AS STATE RESTS

Prosecution Connects Ex-chief with Ben Rudner.

POINTS FOR PAT

By DAVID P. SENTNER.

CANTON, O., Dec. 18.—Counsel for Pat McDermott, on trial for the murder of Don R. Mellett, vice fighting publisher, opened its case today by plunging into an alibi defense.

Ten defense witnesses were called who testified to the movements of Ben Rudner, alleged Massillon bootlegger, indicted with McDermott; to Pat not being the man with Rudner on a Sunday morning visit to Canton police headquarters; to McDermott never having visited Rudner in his hardware store, and to Rudner being out of town on the date the prosecution alleged McDermott came to Massillon to get paid for "doing the Mellett job."

Reference to Ex-Policeman.

The prosecution scored a point in cross examining J. W. P. Smith, Massillon merchant police officer, who told of seeing Ben Rudner at 4 a. m. in the street the morning after the midnight slaying of Mellett.

Mrs. Ben Rudner, pretty wife of the Massillon storekeeper, came to her husband's defense, by testifying that she was automobiling with him on the day McDermott was alleged to have phoned him and later visited him. She also accounted for his movements on other occasions stressed by the state's testimony.

The state has connected four former members of the Canton police department with the alleged conspirators. While the defense is attempting to show there was no conspiracy as alleged by the state on the part of McDermott, Rudner and Louis Mazer, indicted for the murder, it is contending that the conspiracy phase has no place in the evidence as only McDermott is on trial.

As its last parting shot, further testimony connecting S. A. Lengel, former Canton police chief with Rudner, one of the three alleged conspirators in the slaying of Mellett, was introduced before the prosecution closed its case at 9:23 o'clock this morning.

Under cross-examination the witness admitted he had had a quarrel with Rudner concerning a police dog. Defense counsel made a motion to strike out all of Brumme's testimony. The court denied this motion.

Defense's First Witness.

Kuntz testified he worked in Ben Rudner's store the month of July (the murder month.) He said he did not know the defendant.

"Did you ever see Pat McDermott in the store?"

"I never did."

SIX CHILDREN OF FRANK ROOD, OCCUPY HUMBLE HOME IN ROCK ALLEY, MAY BE OVERLOOKED ON CHRISTMAS EVE BY SANTA CLAUS

Six children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rood, of Rock alley fear they may be overlooked by Santa Claus when he makes his rounds on Christmas eve, one week from tonight.

Without food or fuel and with few household furnishings and scant clothing, the family was found in destitute circumstances on a houseboat along the river front about a month ago.

The father, a potter by trade, was ill with pneumonia when Willard McCoy, engineer at the No. 2 plant of the Hall China company went to the houseboat to advise Rood, who has applied for work a short time previously, that a temporary job was available for him at the Hall plant.

The children, McCoy learned, had been sleeping on the bare floor without coverings. There was practically nothing in the house to eat and four of the seven youngsters had gone to school that morning without breakfast. The husband and father, who had been visited by a doctor on two occasions, said he had never applied for relief.

One Child Dies, Another Ill.

McCoy immediately rented a three-room house in Rock alley near Minerva street and interested a local transfer man in moving what little furnishings the family possessed without charge. McCoy took up a collection to provide the family with groceries and a physician was immediately called to attend the father.

A few days after the family had been installed in new quarters, Alexander, 12, eldest of the seven children, became ill with influenza. Appendicitis developed and he was sent to the hospital, where he underwent an operation. Peritonitis developed and death occurred about 10 days ago.

While the boy was being buried at Bellville, W. V., Sarah, 10, was stricken with appendicitis and a few days later she also was removed to the hospital where an operation was performed.

Rood had hoped to accept the job offered him this week but on Monday he was suffering from a liver complaint, and a physician advised him to rest for a few days.

During the last few days neighbors and others have become interested in the case. Beds, bed clothing and other furnishings have been provided. Willing hands repapered the home. The floors, however, are still without carpets or rugs and other household furnishings are needed. Sufficient foodstuffs have been contributed to meet the family's need, but money is required to pay hospital, doctor and medicine bills. McCoy has collected funds to liquidate the expenses of the oldest child's burial.

Clothing for the children and the parents is needed. Rood has expressed a desire to attend church but needs a suit, McCoy said. In addition to the girl in the hospital, the other children are: Ina May, 8; Arthur, 7; Clyde, 5; Elizabeth, 3, and Fred, 14-month-old baby.

SPEED WORK ON "NARROWS" FOR RIVER HIGHWAY

Jefferson County Officials Inspect Improvements.

Operations on the Ohio river road are now largely confined to the "Narrows" section. Steady progress is being made in the gigantic task of cutting through a hillside to make way for the proposed new highway which will connect Steubenville, Wellsville, East Liverpool and other Ohio communities by a direct river route.

A steam shovel is still digging its way through tons of rock and earth to provide a route for the new road,—a route where present day traffic has never moved. Working amidst natural handicaps, excellent progress is being made and by early spring, it is predicted that practically all of the digging will have been completed.

No definite time has been set for th opening of the "Narrows" to traffice but those in county and state road building circles who are most hopeful believe light traffic will be using the route early next spring or summer.

Present operations on the Stratton-Yellow Creek section of the Ohio river road have been done by force account. Tremendous progress has been made despite difficult physical obstacles and month after month reveals the finished highway that much nearer.

In the same district, between Yellow Creek and the Columbiana county line, proposed highway changes are now being considered by the road officials and the Pennsylvania railroad engineers which, if successfully worked out, will give added benefit to the river road. Elimination of crossings and a culvert is a part of the general plan.

Yesterday Jefferson county commissioners and county road officials visited the scene of the proposed changes and today spoke favorably for the improvement. It is understood that the Pennsylvania railroad is also anxious to cooperate, likely to the extent of paying for half of the cost.

LEGAL FOES ARE AWARDED 'DRAW'

Both sides won and both sides lost, according to a verdict returned by a jury in No. 1 court in the case of Edward Wardles against James Pugia, of Wellsville. This was an action filed by Wardles to recover $500 damages from the defendant as a result of an automobile accident, the petition being filed in common pleas court, June 1st, last year.

The verdict of the jury was in favor of the defendant on the petition of the plaintiff, and for the plaintiff on the cross petition of the defendant.

In other words, the trial was a "draw."

Kolster or Federal Radios appeal to the eye but their main appeal is to the ear.

That is why Kolster and Federal Radios have become known as the "musician's radio." They are preferred by famous orchestral conductors, singers, composers and musicians.

CIRCUS FILM AT AMERICAN

Pat O'Malley and Marian Nixon in "Spangles."

The longest engagement ever played by a big circus within sight of its permanent winter quarters took place during the filming of "Spangles," the Universal-Jewel to be shown Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the American theatre.

Here the "Spangles" company worked day after day, with the ring acts going on, the trained animals "doing their stuff," the clowns "clowning," the ringmaster ringing—or, rather cracking his whip, and everything just as it is during a performance. In fact, on one very especial day, a Sunday, an audience of 5,000 persons was recruited to "act" in the picture. Incidentally, the work of the circus people served as rehearsals and practice for them, as the show left the day after the picture company finished, and began its summer tour in Phoenix, Arizona.

"Spangles" was directed by Frank O'Connor, and the supporting cast includes Hobart Bosworth, Gladys Brockwell, Jay Emmett, Grace Gordon and James Conly. The story is by Nellie Revell, with screen adaptation by Lear Baird.

Inland Waterway Systems

Representatives of the Mississippi Valley states and the Great Lakes states have got together in the senate and come to a compromise on the question of a navigation channel connecting the lakes with the Mississippi.

This project was opposed by Great Lakes senators because it seemed to imply the continued diversion of a large volume of water from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi by the Chicago drainage canal. The compromise measure is worded so as to avoid authorizing any such diversion. The idea is to keep the two questions separate, handling each according to its own merits.

There will be general satisfaction with this procedure. If Chicago is injuring navigation on the Great Lakes by drawing off large quantities of water for her own sanitary purposes, as she is declared to be doing, there are means of adjusting that. The matter is now pending in the supreme court. That court will doubtless determine whether water from one drainage basin, wanted for navigation there, may legally be diverted to another drainage basin.

As for the transportation features of the proposal, there should be no disagreement about them. The two great navigation systems, one comprising the Great Lakes with their rivers and the other the Mississippi with its tributaries, should both be developed to their capacity for the benefit of national transportation. And both should benefit by connecting them by an adequate canal, to make them virtually one super-system, if it can be done without injuring either system unduly for the benefit of the other.

Broadway Curfew

New York's long-expected curfew law is a reality. The board of aldermen has passed the measure and it becomes effective immediately.

"Broadway groans," says the metropolitan papers. Very likely. Broadway evidently counts that night lost whose late ascending sun fails to reveal a horde of home-bound revellers staggering into the subway. But the night waiters do not groan. Nor the great majority of New York citizens.

It isn't such a radical law, either, an outsider would suppose. It merely provides that the cabarets and night clubs must close at 3 o'clock in the morning.

A lot of Broadway rounders, most of whom are probably visitors rather than regular residents, need it.

School Teeth

A taxpayer brought suit recently—in a supposedly enlightened community, too—to stop the school board from paying for dental inspection and care in the public schools. The high light of the suit was the testimony of a school principal, to this effect:

She found an improvement of 99.8 per cent in the mental ability of school children who were taught to take proper care of their teeth. The percentage was arrived at by painstaking observation and checking up of their work, before and after the dental instruction.

Call it 100 per cent improvement. Or call it half that much, if you like. If it will effect only 25 per cent improvement, or only 10 per cent, in the mental keenness and studious accomplishment of the pupils, such work is well worth paying for. Still more valuable, possibly, is the better morale that is likely to go with a clean, well kept outfit of teeth.

An Imaginary State

The fiery and visionary Trotzky is coming to his senses. Appearing dramatically before the Communist Internationale in Moscow the other day, he told his fellow-radicals that it was impossible to build a Socialist state in a capitalist world.

"Russia cannot exclude herself from world economics," he said. "It is necessary for us to buy factory equipment abroad. The present disastrous condition of our industry is the best proof of the dependence of the Soviet Union on the rest of the world. An isolated Socialist country can exist only in the imagnation."

The red Russian statesmen so far have been living and working mainly in the realm of imagination. But there are many signs that they are coming down to reality. When a zealot like Trotzky sees the truth as he has now expressed it, there is hope that the rest of them may see it sooner or later.

Those Red Lights

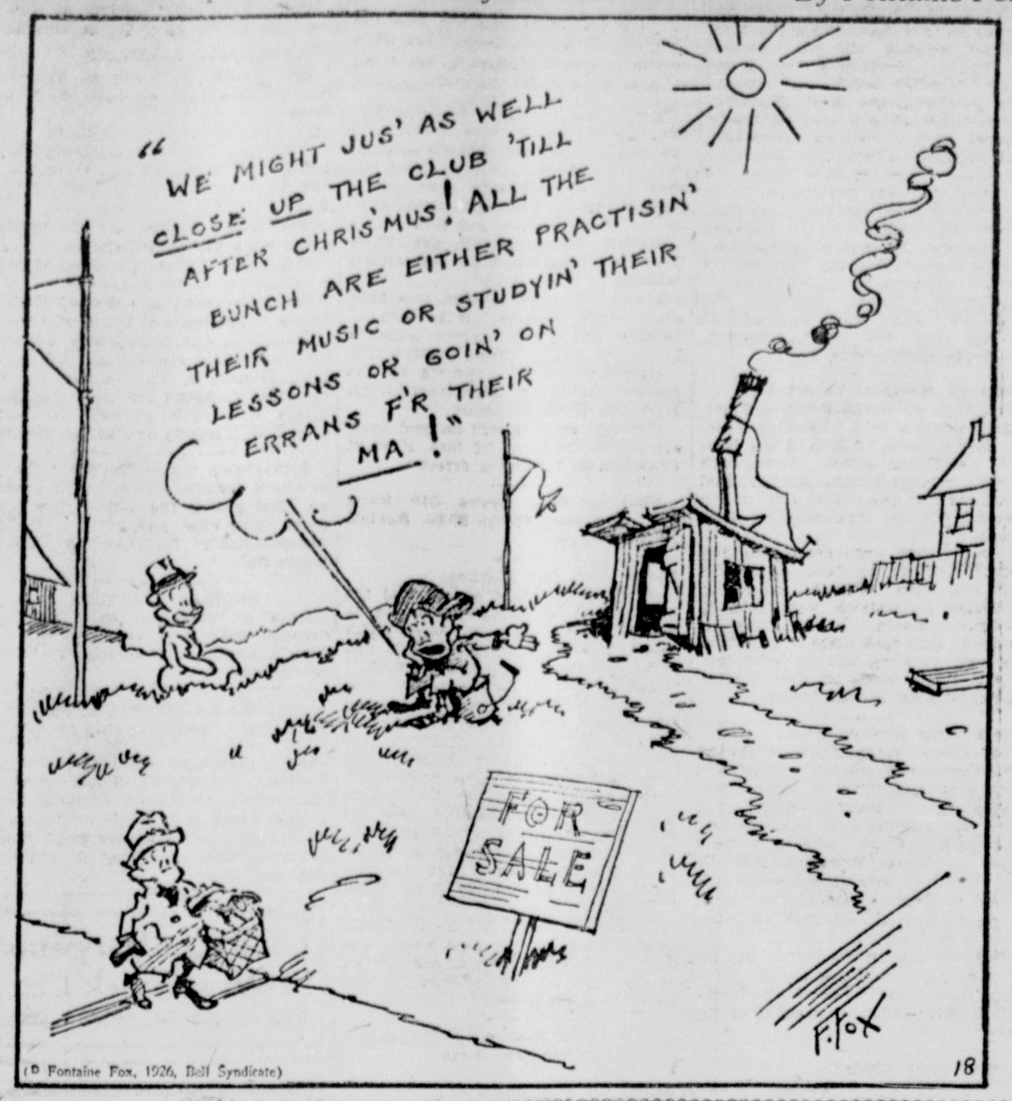

They tell a story in Lewiston, Me., about a traffic signal tower that was erected there a year or two ago, showing the usual alternate red and green lights. The other day a woman motorist drove right past the tower when the signal said "Stop" and the red light showed. She was held up by a traffic officer, who said to her:

"Don't you know what those lights mean?"

"Well," replied the woman, developing a sudden show of interest, "do you know, I've always sort of wondered what the colored lights were for."

There seem to be quite a lot of people, most everywhere, who sort of wonder what the red lights are for, judging from their procedure, but who unfortunately don't take the trouble to inquire.

THE SPORTS OF THE SEASON.

It's short, today's offering is, but is goes to the point.

"Good morning, madam," said the caller, on one bright winter morning in the early part of December. "Is your husband at home?"

"He is not," said the lady of the house.

"May I ask where he is?"

"Ah, indeed. And may I make so bold as to inquire what he is doing there?"

"Well, if the ice is as thick as he thinks it is, he's gone skating. If it's as thin as I think it is, he's gone swimming."

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The public hears chiefly of those high-jumping stage girls who make lads down from New Haven miss chapel, read some misunderstood husband's ootsey-tootsey letters to 12 perfect strangers or pry a fur coat out of a visitor listed under "Buyers in Town."

Very little is heard of those who change their pace or vanish into humdrum domesticity. There are more of them than most people think. As a matter of fact only about 30 per cent of eager eyed maidens who begin New York stage careers continue them.

One of the most celebrated of the Follies beauties of five years ago after being squired about for years by the pick of Broadway dandies suddenly married what the White Way calls a "clod" and is happy as aproned queen of her cottage kitchen in a middle west village.

Another for whom various "angels" squandered huge sums in effort to star her went up the gangplank of a ship one night and several months later came word of her marriage to an obscure farmer in the English countryside.

Then, of course, there are happily hundreds whose talents are not equal to requirements, realize it and return to their home towns to marry substantial townsmen and live content ever after. There seems to be a halo that goes with their New York experience and they marry well.

There are any number of girls who have turned like startled dreamers from the Broadway pleasures and perfected themselves in nursing, painting, music and other arts. In this way they have become self-supporting and respected.

Novelists seem to carry the burden of physical affliction with more grace than most people. Basil King is almost totally blind. Somerset Maugham has a pronounced impediment in his speech. Rupert Hughes is deaf. Albert Payson Terhune, due to an accident, was able to use only one arm for many years. J. Breckenridge Ellis has been in a wheel chair since a boy. Yet in their presence so overpowering is their personalities one never notices their handicaps.

Among things lost in Pullman cars this week pulling into New York was a turtle. There's an Aesop's fable there.

A hack literary calling is known in the trade as "ghosting." It is done by writers in obscurity for the famous. Sometimes it is an autobiography or one of those up from the East Side narratives. The "ghosters" are well paid but they remain unknown. Writing original newspaper serials has also developed into a highly specialized trade. There are more than a dozen men and women writers who are topping $50 000 a year dashing off bang up yarns which must lead up to a daily startling climax and an abrupt "Continued tomorrow."

Now that uptown night club battles are so numerous several all night drug stores in the Times Square neighborhood are displaying window signs reminiscent of hallowed days on the Bowery and reading "Black Eyes Treated."

The speak-easy hideaways grow in grandeur. One man owns three. In appearance they are apartments furnished in excellent taste and in aristocratic sections. They are rented for small dinner parties—eight being the limited number. The host may take his guests there to be met by a butler and French maid. Cocktails are served as they might be served in one's own home as is the excellent dinner and wine and cordials to follow. Afterward there is a coffee room and electric music. The apartment is merely rented from 6 until 11 and the price is $400 for a party of eight — with the meals and liquor, of course, included in the tariff. The price is the same for one couple or eight and it is said they have been rented every night since they opened four months ago.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

A Remarkable Strike.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec 18.—Perhaps the most remarkable strike that the world has ever known recently occurred in England. It was not the general strike, extraordinary for its brief duration, considering all attending circumstances. Nor was it the coal strike, about which volumes will be written after a panacea for all industrial ills has been discovered.

In fact, this strike was not the result of an industrial controversy. It was not a strike of trades unionists, artisans, or laborers. It was not a strike of "white collar" workers, or of government or civic employes. It did not upset or interfere with the orderly functioning of society. On the contrary, it threatened the disorderly practices of a large part of the British public.

It was a strike of gamblers. The presiding geniuses at baccarat tables did not walkout, nor did the croupiers who run the roulette wheels lay down their rakes and refuse to spin the ivory ball. The faro dealer did not ask for more pay and shorter hours and quit when their demands were denied, and the crap shooters did not park their dice and announce that there would be nothing doing until they were conceded something which they wanted overmuch.

It was a strike of bookmakers, not those whose labors enrich the libraries of the world, but those who enrich themselves by guessing that the public in general can not pick the winner of a horse race. The bookmakers did not strike because it had been demonstrated that the British public was picking better than usual, nor because they were compelled frequently to work overtime, nor yet because they thought their patrons should accept shorter odds. They struck because Winston Churchill, England's Chancellor of the Exchequer, decided that he could materially increase his government's income by imposing a tax on betting. The bookmakers walked out, so to speak, as a protest against the tax, For two days they refused to accept any bets, but their strike was lost before it was started. It was even more futile than the general strike in which the unionists tried to paralyze all activity in England as a means of winning favorable terms for the striking miners.

Betting A Big Industry.

Betting on horse races is a big industry or business in England. Millions of pounds are wagered every day of the racing meets, and millions are wagered in winter books or pools on the classic turf events months in advance of their running. Everybody engages in this business except a very small minority composed of the few who believe that betting is immoral and the other insignificant fraction of the populace who have learned the lesson that betting is unprofitable and that "money you get that way don't do you no good nohow."

Everybody, from the noblest of the nobility to the commonest of the commoners, has something down on the next race that there is to be run. Much of the betting is done at the tracks, of course, but far more of it in what are known in this country as handbooks and are operated secretly, but which in England are conducted openly and are generally looked upon as quite as legitimate businesses as the grocer's or haberdasher's.

Bets that are made range from the charwoman's shilling to a peer's thousand quid, or more, and to even larger sums wagered by what are known as the professional backers. The latter are the professionals and in England are as distinct a class as the bookmakers. In this country there is no corresponding group, save possibly the rather indefinite element composed of men, and a few women, who make a business of "following the races."

It was the professional backers who precipitated the trouble over the betting tax. They insisted that the bookmakers should pay the tax and threatened to withdraw their patronage if the bookmakers persisted in collecting it from the betters. Amateurs, who comprise the great majority of the betting public, disliked the tax, but were willing to pay a small percentage on their winnings, provided the bookmakers bore their share of it.

The tax levied was 2 per cent on all bets at the race courses and 3½ per cent on bets at the starting-price offices. Most of the bookmakers decided to conduct 2½ per cent on winning bets only, losers to pay nothing.

The objection of the bookmakers to the tax, however, was not only the inherent resentment of all people against any tax but was due to the difficulty of collecting it and the keeping of records that would satisfy the revenue authorities, and the general slowing up of their operations incident to making change and arguing with bettors in the multitudinous cases where only small bets were involved.

The Government's Difficulties.

From the government's standpoint, the chief difficulty is in securing a record of the operations of all bookmakers and in effecting a collection of the tax in such a way that no one who bets can escape it. There is no doubt but that the Churchill tax innovation will yield enormous revenues to supplement a sadly depleted national exchequer, provided only that it can be collected. As Shakespeare observed, "there's the rub!"

As an alternative to the system involving a tax collected from bookmakers it has been proposed that the totalizator or pari-mutuel system be adopted, as it has been adopted in France and in those states in the United States which have legitimatized race-track betting. Under the pari-mutuel plan there are no bookmakers to lay odds. Bettors buy tickets on the horses they favor, and the odds are established by a mechanical calculation made the moment the betting on a given race is closed. This system has its advantages. Bettors must put up their cash and they get cash promptly if they win. There are no I. O. U's. Also the state or the government can be assured of collecting all its percentage of all bets laid.

The objection to the system is that it is good only for bets made at race tracks, and when it comes to a government's deriving revenue from betting the important thing is how to collect the tax on the tremendous volume of bets made away from the tracks. To illustrate, when the racing season is on in Maryland 20,000 people may go to Laurel, to Pimlico, to Bowie, or to Havre de Grace, on any given day, and there wager tens of thousands through the pari-mutuels. But on each such day, 50,000 people in Washington and proportionate numbers in every city in the United States may make bets—and they do!—through illegally operated handbooks. How collect a tax on that kind of betting?

But the amazing thing about what has transpired over in England is that the government there has to a degree legitimatized one of the most prevalent, most pernicious, and most insidious forms of gambling by levying a tax on it, and that the gamblers have gone on a strike as a result.

It is almost as if, in the United States under prohibition, the govern-

BE IN CHURCH SUNDAY

I have again spent Christmas in the Christmas Land. Throughout the 1925-1926 Christmas festival (for there are two Christmas celebrations in Bethlehem, twelve days apart, owing to the use of two calendars by the Occidental and Oriental Churches), my home was in Jerusalem; and Bethlehem is only fiv miles distant. Having fulfilled the ambition of millions of devout Christians, to celebrate Christmas at the very scene of the Nativity, I am bound in candor to say that the day is more fittingly kept, and with truer Christmas feeling, in uncounted homes in the western world. It is far better to know the spirit of Christmas than to visit the scene of Christmas.

What does the traveler find who goes to Bethlehem today? First of all, he sees a modernized town, with large houses, built mostly by the money of returned emigrants. There are many big churches, school, orphanages, monasteries and convents. The people are predominantly Christian (very few of them Protestants) and in their faces and in the women's dress show strong evidence of Crusader influence. The principal industry of Bethlehem is cutting mother of pearl ornaments.

The Oldest Church in the World.

Over the grotto which is the traditional scene of the birth of Jesus is a large ancient church, the oldest in the world that is still used for worship. Its tiny door, to enter which even the proudest prelate must stoop, recalls the centuries throughout which the church had to be defended against armed foes. The main room of the church, like Bethlehem and its people, bears traces of the long-time presence of the Crusaders in this place.

Three rival Christian Communions have wrangled and fought—often physically fought—over their rights in this venerable place of worship. These are the Greek Orthodox, the Roman Catholic, and the Armenian Gregorian. To this day, British soldiers, successors to the Turkish troops, stand guard at the birthplace of the Prince of Peace to keep the quarrelsome churchmen from flying at one another's throats. The principal body of the church belongs to the Greeks; the largest chapel is the possession of the Latins; and the Armenians have a small chapel and altar—where, on the Christmas Day of the eastern Churches, I heard them trying to drown out by shrill singing the service of the Greeks! Nothing very Christmasy about that, was there?

Beneath the church is the grotto which oldest tradition says was the stable part of the ancient Bethlehem khan, in which the Babe was born to Mary. It is now overlaid with decorations, each of the two great Churches contending zealously for its right to hang silver lamps and put up pictures and inscriptions. At the Christmas celebration, sumptuously dressed dolls are placed in the Crypt of the Nativity.

Whoso goes to Bethlehem for either the eastern or western Christmas, will see great crowds of many nationalities in the holiday spirit; and elaborate parades, through Bethlehem's square and into the Church, of richly-vestimented prelates, with costly banners and crosses. But of the bubbling joyousness of Christmas; of the overflowing spirit of good will and peace; and of the simplicity of the first Holy Night, he will see little or nothing.

To draw near the spiritual sense of what the first Christmas meant, the visitor must leave the crowded city of Bethlehem, and the ceremony-surfeited Church of the Nativity, and make his way out to the neighboring Field of the Shepherds. Everything elese has changed in Bethlehem; nothing remains to remind one of the night of nights. But out in the open the scene is the same. Here are the old hills, the old view of the mountains of Moab by the light of the clear Syrian skies, and the old fields where once the shepherds watched their flocks by night.

It was not amidst the pompous pride of ecclesiasticism that the Son of God came to earth; but to these lowly, lonely shepherds, simple and trustful, representatives of the great bulk of earth's plain people Heaven drew nearest to earth on the spot here common men fulfilled their daily duty. These fields, where still the sheep are pastured, heard the songs of the angels from the rent skies; and saw the Glory that once shone above the Ark of the Covenant. It was to ordinary men, engaged in a lowly calling, that there was given the news of the emancipation of the race from sin and war and unbrotherliness. That a Saviour had been born—the news transcending all other news—was first told, out here in the open air, to shepherds whose one quality of greatness was their unquestioning faith in God.

Cosmopolitan Crowds at Bethlehem.

Even though too much formal churchliness separates between the pilgrim to Bethlehem and the Nativity itself, one great testimony to Christmas appears in the Christmas Town at Christmastide. That is the cosmopolitanism of the crowds which throng to the Holy Land in December. Here is visual evidence that the Child of Mary is dear to all people in all places. There are no limits of race or creed in His worship. I saw Chinese and Indians and Arabs and Egyptians and Russians and Italians and Germans and Scandinavians and British and Australians and Americans, all met at Bethlehem.

A greater variety of peoples than were present at Pentecost crowded into the narrow streets of Bethlehem last year to keep Christmas. Alas, that they should have been rewarded only by barren ceremonialism! But the lovers of the Lord are many in all lands; and the lure of the Saviour, born in a Manger, has been the magnet to draw pious pilgrims from all parts of the earth and from all branches of the Church Universal. Christmas sympolizes significantly the fellowship of the followers of Christ. The fact of the Nativity, and the universal love embodied in its Message, have gripped the world. What a kingship the Babe of Bethlehem exercises.

If many of the multitude who had made pilgrimage to the Holy Land for Christmas were disappointed by the arid ecclesiasticism of the festival in Bethlehem itself, they were rewarded by frequent revealing glimpses of the life that formed the background of the first Christmas. They learned to know the familiar sight of a mother and a child on a little donkey, with the bearded husband walking alongside; as when the Holy Family went down into Egypt. They mayhap saw shepherrs, in their heavy cloaks called abeyahs, crouching about little fires on the hillside, keeeping watch over their flocks by night. Assuredly, they became familiar with the type of Syrian girl, ovel-faced, lustrous-eyed, olive-skinned, such as Mary was. They traveled the Great Road which runs north of Nazareth, made sacred by the feet of Mary and Joseph and Jesus. They became familiar with the Boy's home, hills and lake, and, like Him, they fed their spirits upon the sites sacred to Israel's history. And they drew near to the life of the lowly in the Land of the Lord.

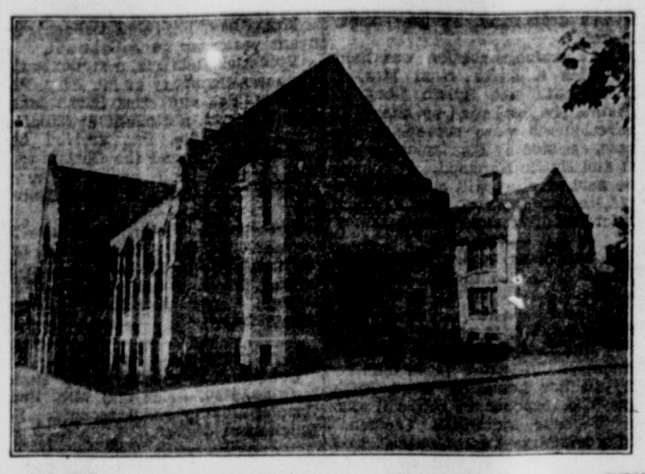

The High Strategy of Christmas.

Such of the Christmas pilgrims as were informed, and broad-minded, saw, last year, amidst the scenes of Christmas, the high strategy of this revelation of God by the mysterious Incarnation of Himself in a Babe at Bethlehem, who should be heaven's Messenger of peace and good will.

Still, as of old., the Christmas Land is central to the world's politics. Imperialism, oppression and exploitation are the order of the day in the East. Again, as in the time of our Lord, the voice of the people cries aloud for deliverance. War's guns in Syrie drown the music of the Christmas bells.

At the same time, projects for general peace abound in the world. Has any of these superseded the program of the Christmas angels? Clearly not. Peace is to come only "among men of good will." Until the spirit of Christmas rules in the hearts of the nations and of statesmen, supplanting present rivalries and selfishness, there simply cannot be peace. The strategy of God strikes deep into the human heart. He purposes a made-over world by way of made-over men, who confess allegiance to a new sovereignty, a new Prince, and who accept the law of righteousness and of love which Christ came to lay down. Even the significance of a renewal of the world by way of the Babe—the cradle-route to character—becomes apparent as we contemplate Christmas as the feast of children; the making over of life from its beginnings, and animated by the spirit of Christ himself.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Methodism, in East Liverpool and vicinity, had its beginning in the days when "church attendance was regarded by the pioneer as a great privilege and a duty." History of the foundation of the Methodist Episcopal faith is found in eloquent detail in the book "Memories" compiled several years ago by Christian Metsch and C. R. Boyce.

From the lone cabin of Thomas Fawcett and his family who settled on the Ohio river, in the Northwest territory about the year 1798, sprang the settlement which later became Fawcettstown, and still later, East Liverpool.

"In 1823 there were only six or seven families in the settlement and Second street was but a crooked bridle path along the shore of the river." An old grist mill was the town's chief business interest, so "Memories" states.

Initial Meetings.

First religious meetings were conducted in the log school house, which was located near the present site of the Central school. "Crevices between the unhewn logs were plastered up with clay, and at the west and south openings were left for light and over these were tightly drawn dark, heavy paper soaked in oil to make it more transparent. Within the floor was rough, displaying all about the axe strokes of some early pioneer; the seats were benches without backs and desks were formed by a single board around the wall supported by pins driven in the logs."

The Rev. George Brown, of Wheeling, said to have been a most dynamic preacher, was the first to organize a Methodist church. The organization took place in 1827 in the home of Claiborne Simms Sr.

First Members.

Names of the members of the class during the first few years were Jesse Johnson and wife, James and William Warrick and their wives, Mrs. Robert Fawcett, Claiborne and Basil Simms and wives, the Fawcett sisters, Simeon Johnson and wife, Mrs. Nancy Anderson, Mother Abigail Smith, Samuel Lyon and wife, John Lyon, Able Coffin and wife, Benjamin Davidson and wife, and also other members of the Stone, Johnson and Stevens families. Following organization of the class, meetings were conducted in the log school, a Sunday school was opened with Jesse Johnson acting as superintendent.

Church services were extremely solemn occasions, the sermons usually inspiring awe in the hearts of the listeners, young and old. Hymns were sung by couplets, the preacher first reading two lines, then the congregation singing them, after which the next two lines were read to them, and so on thorugh the hymn.

Services for the following Sunday, announced by the circuit rider preacher were called for "early candlelight."

Attending the services was as important in the lives of the pioneers as any part of their daily existence, and "Memories" relates that "men and boys not infrequently walked ten miles to attend some campmeeting and it was at these meetings that scores were converted and became staunch members of the church."

Donate Site for Church.

It was through Joseph Smith, son-in-law to Thomas Fawcett, that negotiations were completed by which a lot fronting 60 feet on Fifth street and 90 feet on Jackson street was donated the Methodist Society, in 1836.

Plans for the erection of a church were begun at once. Membership in the Methodist church had grown to such an extent that an edifice really in advance of the time was planned. The building was almost square, history states, with a stone foundation which served as a basement, in which services were first conducted. The upper portion of the church was brick and was built several years after the basement.

Public school sessions were conducted in the basement of the church for several years, the log cabin having become dilapidated.

The church was not infrequently called "Father Phillips' church" because when the little band of Methodists found it almost impossible to meet the financial obligation of the new church building, this faithful member mortgaged his farm in order to provide funds. He and his family spent long years of hard labor thereafter to pay off the mortgage.

Circuit Riders.

Among the circuit rider preachers listed in "Memories" are included Stephen Hubbard, who traveled the Columbiana circuit in 1834; C. H. Jackson; James Madison Bray, who was circuit preacher from 1842 to 1843.

Others included Thomas Winstanley, Stephen Hubbard, C. H. Jackson, James M. Bray, John Huston, Samuel Crouse, Warren Long, Martin Luther Weekly, W. P. Blackburn, John Murray, L. D. Prosser, L. J. Dales, W. N. Gilmore, W. C. Henderson, A. W. Butts, and Edwin Bennet.

Storm Damages Church.

The storm which occurred in January, 1854, carried away the roof of the church and blew in one of the walls, making further services in the building impossible. It was necessary to almost rebuild the structure and until repairs were made, services were conducted in the Presbyterian church.

Money for the rebuilding was accumulated by subscription, the ground prepared, and the foundation laid for a new church, the predecessor of the present building. The Rev. A. W. Butts was in charge of the East Liverpool circuit at the time of the storm and during subsequent preparations for rebuilding.

Through War Period.

Under management of efficient and earnest ministers the East Liverpool church progressed, until the exciting times of 1860-1864 came. The Rev. M. W. Dallas, pastor at that time, organized a company which went to Columbus for enlistment and the pastor served in the army as chaplain.

The Liverpool circuit, which had been gradualiy decreased, was in 1860 composed of East Liverpool, Glasgow, Ohioville, Brush Run, and Industry.

End of Liverpool Circuit.

The Rev. Wesley Smith was the last pastor to serve the the Liverpool circuit Minutes of the quarterly conference of January 3, 1863 record the request that the Liverpool church be made a separate appointment. This petition was granted and the Liverpool Circuit became history. The Rev. M. S. Kendig was the first pastor, taking up the charge in the spring of 1863.

"Like a child learning to walk the Licerpool parish was weak and unexperienced for the first few years of its existence separate from the circuit. Total membership was 72. Members, unsure what sum they might be able to pay agreed to give the pastor $320 and as much more as they could raise. They succeeded in raising $340."

Plan New Church.

Plans for the erection of a new church were completed in 1872 and the razing of the old structure took place in the following year

During the erection of this building, services were conducted in an especially built tabernacle.

Cornerstone of the new church was laid in 1873. First services, during the pastorate of the Rev. Ezra Hingeley, were conducted the next year. Through the efforts of the Rev. John Williams and an efficient corps of members the church weathered the storm of financial straits.

Methodist churches were erected in the East End of East Liverpool, and subsequent repairs and improvements were made in the first church, including the erection of a parsonage.

Present Church.

Into the growth of the Methodist Episcopal church of this city has gone countless sacrifices and courageous struggles, the result of earnest convictions and deep faith. The present edifice is a monument to the efforts of its members throughout the years since the foundation of Methodism.

Dedication of the beautiful church was conducted by Bishop William F. Anderson, September 24, 1922, during the pastorate of the Rev. I. L. Wood. The present estimated property value is $250,000. Approximate membership is 1,500.

Much of the success that attends the present routine of the First Methodist Episcopal church is due to the capable leadership of the pastor, the Rev. Frank G. Fowler.

"Spirit of Christmas," Sermon By Rev. B. R. Johnson

We Have Written Christ's Name on Our Checks, Now Let Him Within Our Hearts.

By Rev. B. R. Johnson, Pastor of First Church of Christ.

There is a spirit abroad in the land. It marches to and fro, carrying with it a joyous atmosphere, leaving smiles and toys and happy hearts. What a glorious spirit! It is everywhere. It causes green trees to come from the far north land to make a thousand homes happy with the evergreen, symbol of the undying nature of this spirit. We see old Santa in our stores, in our newspapers and walking our streets. Childish hearts beat high this Christmas tide. Expectancy fills the air. Husbands secretly carry bundles into neighbor's homes, and children hide presents from the eyes of Dad and Mother. All this to be revealed on a certain day, Christmas day.

Meaning of Spirit.

What is the meaning of this strange and transforming spirit? It came from a lowly origin. Away back upon the Judean plains, in a manger there was born a babe. This babe was wrapped in swaddling clothes. But upon this lowly child there was poured out such gifts as none other had known. In heaven there appeared a special star, and it stood over the place where the child lay. Wise men from the East came also and offered gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh. There was music too. No song was ever sung with such melodies and with such import. Its music is ringing the world and is destined to become the song of a new social order, a new race. "Glory to God in The Highest and Peace on Earth, Goodwill to Men."

(Rev. B. R. Johnson.)

THE NAME TELLS A TRUE STORY

The very name, Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, tells why, without opiates or chloroform, it is so quickly effective in stopping coughs and in healing the distressing cause. Because it alone combines the curative virtues of pure Pine Tar and other healing ingredients, together with the mollifying demulcent effects of clear fresh Honey. From 651 E. 46th St, Chicago, comes this: "A stubborn cough worried me, kept me awake nights, and resisted other cough medicines, but quickly yielded to your good Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. My druggist recommended it." Ask for it. Sold everywhere.

SEVEN SENTENCE SERMONS.

Ah, when shall all men's good
Be each man's rule, and universal peace
Lie like a shaft of light across the land,
And like a lane of beams athwart the sea,

Glory to God in the highest,
And on earth peace among men in whom he is well pleased. — Luke 2:14. (R. V.)

Ah, dearest Jesus, Holy Child!
Make Thee a bed, soft, undefiled,
Within my heart, that it may be
A quiet chamber kept for Thee.—Martin Luther.

God rest you merry, gentlemen,
For Jesus Christ our Saviour
—Old Carol.

In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent His only-begotten Son into the world, that we might live through Him.—1 John 4:9.

How silently, how silently,
The wondrous gift is given!
So God imparts to human hearts
The blessings of His heaven.
—Phillips Brooks.

O ye beneath life's crushing load,
Whose forms are bending low,
Who toil along the climbing way,
With painful steps and slow;
Look now! for glad and golden hours
Come swiftly on the wing:
Oh rest beside the weary road,

how to live. He went about doing good. He taught that it is more blessed to give than to receive. His name is written into the commerce of the world; it is written on the brow of time, for all peoples and nations date their time from his cradle. In a book we have all his recorded sayings. Yet those sayings have so appealed to the life of the world as to change its thought, its conduct and its hopes.

Real Spirit of Christmas.

While there is some selfishness in the observation of Christmas, yet the great majority give their gifts in the spirit of Him whose life made possible the glory of Christmas. Thanks to the many organizations and fraternities who remember the helpless and unfortunate. Some may say bread is enough. But when you carry out your basket of pork, beans and bread, place on it a sack of candy, some toys for the little ones, a book for the older children, a few nuts and some fruit. Bread may be enough for the body, but man, the whole man cannot live by bread alone.

We have written Christ's name on our checks, it appears in our advertisements; it colors our conversation, now let us make His spirit our spirit by letting Him live within our hearts.

Juvenile Bible Study

One question for each day is provided. The parent will find it interesting and helpful to have the child take up the question each day and aid it in finding the answer in the Scriptures, thus developing a knowledge of the Bible and where to find in it the things decided. Send or bring the little folks to the class Sunday at 1:45 p. m. The "Ceramic Cafeteria Auditorium," 121 West Fifth Street.

514. Can we see the condition of the dead?

Answer: We cannot.

515. Then what is the only way we can know about their state or condition?

Answer: By the study of the Bible to see what God says about it.

516. What does the Bible say is the condition of the dead?

Answer: They have no memory and cannot give thanks (Psalm 6:5) cannot praise the Lord (Psalm 115:17, cannot think (Psalm 146:4), know not anything (Ecclesiastes (:5), do not love nor hate nor envy (Ecclesiastes 9:6), and can do nothing—Ecclesiastes 9:10.

517. If the dead cannot talk, think, love, hate or work, how can any of them be tormented?

Answer: They cannot.

518. If Sheol means the condition of the dead, should it not have been translated every time by the same word instead of about half of the time hell?

Answer: Sheol always means the same thing, and should have been translated every time by the same word.

519. Why did not the translators translate Sheol by the word hell instead of grave in Genesis 37:55, 42:38 and 44:29, 31?

Answer: Because people would then know that it did not mean torment; for God would not send good old Jacob to torment for what his sons had done.

520. Why did they not translate Sheol by the word hell instead of grave in I. Samuel 2:6, where it says, "He bringeth down to the grave (Sheol) and bringeth up"?

Answer: Because they did not want the people to think that there was any hope of anyone's every getting out of hell.

SOLON FARRALL EXPLAINS WAGE BOOST REFUSAL

CITY SHOULD PAY ITS BILLS, HE DECLARES

Gives Reasons for Rejecting Municipal Employes' Request.

WRITES LETTER

Finance Committee Reported Unfavorably on Proposal.

Declaring that potters have taken two wage reductions since the war, Solon Thomas Farrall, chairman of the finance committee of city council, outlined his reasons for opposing wage increases to city employes in a letter today to the Review-Tribune.

The councilman suggests that the city first pay its gas, electric, sidewalk, dredging the wharf and other bills "before we take on any more expense." Employes of the water works department, who petitioned for a wage boost, "are getting as much and in some cases more than the average wage for this class of work," Farrall says.

"Dear Sir:

"In view of the fact that nearly every employe of the city has asked for an increase in wages in the last two weeks, I, as one of your councilmen, want to explain to the people why I have voted against at at this time.

"A lot of people think that when you vote against a wage increase for any one, that you are selfish and narrow minded. I want to say right here that I belong to a labor organization and have for 35 years or more, but that does not say that I am duly bound to sanction every increase that comes before me for city employes.

"In the first place the pottery workers of this town have taken two reductions since the war, and at the wage conferences in the last two or three years, they were turned down in their request for an increase in wages.

"Now these are the people who pay all city increases, and, in fact, all costs of any overhead expense to the city. Now do you think it would be right for me as a representative of the peope to vote to increase wages when the man who pays the bill has taken reductions? I do not.

"You will notice by the present tax duplicate that it has jumped from $20.20 to $23.70 per $1,000 valuation an increase of $3.40. The city also owes a lot of back bills such as gas, electric, sidewalk, dredging the wharf and I feel that we should pay what we owe before we take on any more expense that we can rightfully get along without.

"I also think that the city fire department, and police department should be built up to the standard that this town should have. By that I mean more men physically fit for both of these departments, and not by raising the wages. Bring the department up to that point of efficiency that when the time comes it can justly demand more money for its labors. The same holds good in the police department or in fact any department of the city, let the departments make themselves so efficient that they can demand more money, the city is no different than any corporation in this respect.

"The employes at the water works are now getting as much and in some cases more than the average wage for this class of work. The engineers are getting 10 cents per hour more than the engineers scale calls for. The firemen, oilers, and filter house employes, who are all practically classed as labor are getting as much if not more than the average manufacturer is paying his labor. Now don't you think this is fair?

"The city employe loses no time unless of his own accord. He knows at the end of every month just what he has to come and go on. The men who are paying this bill do not know from one day to the next where he stands and is uncertain whether he is going to work three or six days from pay to pay.

"Another thing: Some of these employes asking increases do not live within the city limits, and I do not feel justified in voting the people's money to persons who are not inclined to live in the city when they are on a city job.

Taking it all in all, I feel that most all city employes are receiving as much as the average worker, and the entire finance committee felt that it could not recommend any increases at this time and for that reason they made this recommendation to council.

Six Children

"This is a most worthy case," said McCoy today.

The Salvation Army, Red Cross, Elks' lodge, Nazarene church, City Federation of Women's clubs, Mrs. R. H. Leeper, public health nurse, and Dr. John Fraser, city health commissioner, have also assisted the family.

Field Major Hughes said the Salvation Army had supplied coal, clothing and groceries and contributed $25 toward the eldest son's funeral expenses when the family lived on the houseboat, and since their removal to Rock alley had given them a gas stove.

The Nazarene church also helped them financially and gave them clothing.

Dr. Fraser has given medical services, while nursing attention was provided by Mrs. Leeper.

The family formerly resided in Chester where the father and husband was employed in a pottery. About a year ago their house, with all its furnishings, was destroyed by fire. Rood brought his wife and family to East Liverpool when work at the pottery was uncertain, and during the summer was employed on an ice wagon for the Crockery City Ice & Products company. He has held no steady job for several weeks, he claims.

Seventy-four conversions have resulted from the revival campaign, which has been in progress at the Pleasant Heights Baptist mission, during the last two weeks under the direction of Evangelist Mel Morris, of Greensboro, Md. The campaign is said to have been the most successful on the hill top district for many years.

The meetings will come to a close tomorrow with services at 2:45 and 7:30 p. m. Rev. Mr. Morris will preach on the subject, "Bible Sanctification at Perpetual Holiness," at the afternoon service and his evening topic will be "The S. O. S. Call."

The evangelist will occupy the pulpit of the First Baptist church at 11 o'clock Sunday morning, his subject being "Divine Healing."

TWO DIE FROM CARBON MONOXIDE

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 18.—Mrs. Carrie Wolfe and Miss Mary E. Parsons, Ripley, W. Va., were dead here today, the victims of monoxide gas fumes from a small heating stove. Mrs. Wolfe is the wife of J. L. Wolfe, assistant state attorney general. The bodies were found fully clad lying across a bed, by Wolfe when he returned home.

"Our millage for the coming year will be little more than it was last year, so you can see the position it puts council in. I know that they want to be fair with all concerned in this matter but at the same time they want to be fair with the citizens at large.

"Hoping I have made myself clear on this matter, and I assure you that I will continue to serve you to the best of my ability as long as I am a member of council,

I remain,

"Very Truly Yours;

THOMAS FARRALL"

"Mazer came in with his police dog and talked about it with Rudner," the witness said.

"Did Rudner have a police dog?"

"Yes."

"Do you know Chief S. A. Lengel?"

"No."

Kuntz testified he knew nothing about any long distance telephone calls to the store. The prosecution alleged McDermott made two telephone calls to Rudner.

Never Saw McDermott in Store.

Willard said he was "about 17 years old."

"Did you ever see McDermott in Rudner's store or talking to Rudner?"

"No," Fiscus answered.

Under cross-examination, Fiscus said he had seen Louis Mazer, alleged Canton "jungle king," in Rudner's store twice.

"Do you remember talking with Lawton Smart, your boy friend, and saying that you saw McDermott and Mazer go out of the store?"

"I don't remember," answered Fiscus.

G. G. Zell, Canton carpenter, was the next witness. He testified that he had a "traffic argument with Ben Rudner and another man," and went to police headquarters with Rudner to settle it on a Sunday in July.

"Was this man, McDermott, the one with Rudner that Sunday?"

"He was not," Zell replied.

The prosecution had introduced testimony alleging that Rudner had visited police headquarters with McDermott the Sunday before the murder.

Ben's Brother Testifies.

Eddie Rudner, brother of Ben, stepped out of the courtroom wings and repeated his performance of yesterday before another witness. He turned around slowly, produced a straw hat, put it jauntily on his head and posed in various postures.

"No," Zell replied.

Under cross-examination Zell admitted that McDermott looks something like the man that was with Rudner.

Ed Rudner, brother of Ben, was the next witness called. He testified to being the one with Ben Rudner at the police station when they became involved in a traffic argument with Zell the Sunday before the murder.

Under cross-examination, Ed Rudner admitted he was indicted in 1920 on a federal charge of liquor conspiracy and pleaded guilty five years later.

Contradicts State Witnesses.

Mrs. Rudner, an attractive woman in the thirties, testified to her husband going to the hospital on July 9 for a felon on his finger. Rudner stayed in bed all day, Mrs. Rudner said.

It was on July 9 that Steve Kascholk testified for the state that he and McDermott drove from Massillon to Canton where McDermott said he had a "job." The prosecution alleged McDermott was hired by Rudner.

Mrs. Rudner testified that on July 10 she and her husband and another woman drove to Brewster.

It was on this date that McDermott had automobiled with Peggy Cavanaugh, Cleveland, waitress, to Akron and Massillon "to borrow money, according to state testimony. The prosecution has attempted to show McDermott had been in communication with Rudner and received money for the alleged Mellett murder.

Never Saw Pat.

"Never," Mrs. Rudner answered firmly.

"Never."

The witness said she was in the store every day.

J. W. P. Smith, merchant police officer of Massillon, underwent a heavy cross-examination regarding his testimony of Rudner's activities before and after the murder.

The state kept hammering away at the statement of the witness that he saw Rudner on the street in Massillon at 4 a. m. the morning after the Mellett murder.

"You never saw him so early in the morning before?"

"Yes, when he went fishing."

The witness said he and Rudner visited Canton police headquarters that morning and spoke to Chief S. A. Lengel.

Detective is Witness.

M. C. Jacobs, Canton detective, the next witness, told of arriving at the murder scene at 12:30, midnight, shortly after the crime.

"Mellett said the police had assassinated his brother and that if we arrested Chief Lengel, Ben Clark and others, we'd find out who had done the murder," Jacobs testified. Court was then adjourned until Monday morning.

tween Kansas City and Topeko, farmers say they will not take halfway measures in place of their McNary-Haugen bill.

Albert Lasker, before he became fabulously rich, would pacify an ambitious man, asking more money, by making him assistant vice president at the same old pay. Farmers say you can't do that to them. They demand a federal farm board "to aid in the disposition of surplus farm products."

THE TURKS, stripping the veil from women's faces, "because the women's can't breathe," making joke of the caliph, erecting statues of Kemal Pasha, in defiance of Mohammed's law, think little of churches. That happens in revolutionary times, in the French revolution, and now in Mexico.

TURKEY will make a dance hall of the magnificient church of St. Sophia, built by Constantine, just 1,600 years ago. Since taking Constantinople the Turks have used St. Sophia as a mosque where Mohammedans pray, leaving shoes at the door.

CONSTANTINOPLE Christians were promised when the Turks came that at the last moment angels would appear before St. Sophia and destroy the heathen. It turned out otherwise, the heathen appeared and destroyed the Christians.

Those pious ancients little dreamed that their beautiful Byzantine church would one day echo cacophonous foxtrots and jazz.

REVOLT agitates Albania, Balkan country of much brigandage. Skodra is reported occupied by rebels and on fire. Revolution rages in the Argyrocastro region.

You never heard of those places perhaps, but be grateful that Uncle Sam isn't bound by the League of Nations to send men or money to Argyrocastro.

Confessional Seal Holds Identity of Murderer of Boy

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—The Rev. L. J. Sweeney cannot give police any aid in capturing the degenerate who slew Walter Schmith, aged 6, because the man's story of the brutal crime was told in the confessional, it was declared today at the office of Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago.

The oath of a Catholic priest prevents him from disclosing in any manner the secrets of the confessional and even if called upon to identify the murderer, he would be forced to remain silent.

Handicapped by this veil of secrecy police and hundreds of aroused residents of the fashionable North Shore were combing the district today for a former hostler at the riding academy where the lad was found dying.

The governor's letter asks for detailed statements, showing not only balances left in appropriations for the several departments and institutions, but the names of all employes, the duties, the amount of money paid for their servicese and the names and amounts of all extra employes.

The Old, Old Story

No doubt many of you have heard the story of the man who sold the farm he had lived on for many years and decided to go west in search of gold.

After many years of prospecting in vain he returned home a disappointed man to learn gold had been discovered on the farm he had sold.

The new owner had taken a fortune out of the ground that the former tenant had tramped over for so many years and valued so lightly.

So it is very often in everyday life. We want certain merchandise and go searching in various cities for it only to return and find the very article we wanted here at home marked the same price or perhaps in many instances less. Time, energy and money expended for naught.

Just one more week remains in which to do your Christmas Buying. The merchants of this City urge you to do your buying early in the morning and avoid the rush hours. This will enable the clerks to give you better service and help you to make more careful selections of your Christmas gifts.

The Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction Company will bring you to our doors quickly, safely and comfortably. This company is rendering the best service in its history. Use the cars early in the day and avoid the congested traffic.

Of course, in a way the operations of bootleggers have been recognized by this government, because it has been held judicially that bootleggers must pay income taxes. But the purveyors of illicit spirits do not have to go on strike against a thing of that kind. They merely laugh at income tax collectors and say, "Try to get it!"

On the motion of the plaintiff, the divorce action filed October 12 last by Calia Bozick against her husband, John Bozick, has been dismissed from the record. In this case, a decree and custody of children was sought.

Orvill Jarvis, whose wife, Sarah C. Jarvis, obtained a decree of divorce April 24, 1924, and who was cited to appear before Judge David H. Thomas to show cause why he should not be declared in contempt for the failure to pay the alimony order of the court, was given a hearing in common pleas No. 2, was ordered to satisfy all payments and was released. Mrs. Jarvis was represented by Attorney W. A. O'Grady.

GASOLINE TAX MONEY RECEIVED

A check for $10,000 has been received at the county auditor's office from Columbus as the fourth payment of gasoline tax money due Columbiana county. This is the fourth check received from this excise tax in this county this year, each check being for $10,000. The money is placed to the credit of the county road repair fund.

It is thought that another check will be received before February 1st as a final settlement of the excise tax due this county for the calendar period of 1926. At the time the gas tax became a law it was estimated that the return to the county would not be under $40,000 and that the amount might be exceeded.

There is no county record of what "gas" money is forwarded from Columbus to the different taxing districts, this business being done direct between the Columbus tax office and the financial officers of the taxing districts.

CHECKS MAILED FOR SHEEP CLAIMS

The last of the checks for the payment of sheep and animal claims for 1926 have been mailed from the office of County Auditor Elmer E. Walker. A total of $5,613.40 has been paid from the Dog and Kennel fund in the settlement of these claims, that were recently approved by the county commissioners.

Under a law passed by the last legislature, sheep and animal claims are paid annually instead of quarterly as formerly. The Dog and Kennel fund is created through the sale of dog license tags, and after the sheep and animal claims are paid with other deductions allowed by law, the balance of the money in the fund is credited to the county board of education.

Case Settled.

The case of the East Liverpool Motor Car company against R. E. and Ed R. Simms that has been pending in common pleas court since November 24th has been settled at the costs of the defendant. This was an action to recover $212.10 on a note.

Leave to file a petition at once has been granted by the court to the plaintiff in the appeal case of Lloyd Robusch against Louis Howells. The action has been carried to common pleas court on appeal from a lower court.

Awarded Judgment.

Harry Goldwasser has obtained judgment by default on the evidence submitted to the court in his case against Rube Smith, an appeal from a lower court. The judgment is for $380.45 and costs. This case was made a matter of record June 16, 1925.

Court Order Issued.

A decree of foreclosure, order of sale and to marshal leins has been handed down in No. 1 court in the case of the Community bank of East Liverpool against Minta Campbell. This was an action to recover a judgment for $288.05 and interest from June 9, 1926.

Verdict Returned.

The ENTERTAINING ANGEL

SAMUEL MERWIN

By Samuel Merwin Released Through Central Press Assn

SYNOPSIS:

Julian Reed is wandering southern California in his little roadster. At luncheon in a small restaurant he meets, by chance, a charming, rather wistful young woman. She has missed connections with a troupe of vagabonding actors and he offers to drive her to the troupe's next stopping place, La Jolla. She accepts his offer. Julian meets Watts, the chief of the "Wayside Theatre"; Sadie, an ex-chorus girl, and the rest. Julian comes to the rescue of the troupe financially. Sadie is attracted to him. She tells him how Hester risked everything to try for the leading role in a movie of a play written by "Robert Johns," failed and joined the troupe as a last resort. Julian falls in love with Hester but when she learns of his financial help to Watt she is angry and will have nothing to do with him. Watt offers him a half interest in the enterprise for $4,000 and he accepts. Then he goes away for a time. A new member of the troupe, a college boy, Joe Maybury, is introduced. He, too, loves Hester. She knows he is much younger than she, but to her he is the symbol of youth and his love helps restore her faith in herself. The other members of the troupe understand and pity her. Julian rejoins the troupe at San Diego. Hester has nothing to say to him and walks away when he tries to speak to her. He has bought her a beautiful bracelet, but when she snubs him he thrusts it upon Sadie. Because of his clumsiness in helping with the scenery Joe names Julian "Marceline" after a famous old clown who tries to help but is in everyone's way. Unintentionally at first he calls Julian Marceline to his face, which angers him. Julian has a talk with Hester, telling her he loves her and considers her wonderful. Jim Wilde, stage manager, tells Julian that Lester, the young leading man, is leaving the troupe and that Hester and Watt think Joe may be trained to fill his place. It is decided that he will be given the chance. Joe again calls him "Marceline," whereat Julian warns him not to use that name again, but Joe laughs. Sadie overhears the conversation. Julian writes a play for Hester and is so engrossed he pays attention to no one. The public like Joe's acting, only the members of the troupe realizing his amateurishness and that the applause he receives has gone to his head. Julian gives the finished play to Hester to read, but she gives it to Sadie unread. Sadie gives it to Watt, who props himself comfortably on his cot after the show and prepares to read it. Watt tells Julian that while his play is well written and has literary merit it is not fitted for the stage, but advises him to send it to an eastern publisher. Julian replies that he has already done so, and walks away. Sadie receives some money from her husband and decides to have a party. Hester demurs somewhat, as she has never been on a party where drinks were served, but decides to go, and Sadie realizes with a pang that Hester is slipping. Sadie decides that Hester must not go to the party and that she will show Joe up, so she starts a flirtation with him. She discovers Julian's secret as to his real identity.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE.

Sadie hastily laid a very little mascara on her lashes and a touch of carmine on her lips. Then she sauntered out back, around behind the canvas cyclorama, and took up a position—oh, artlessly enough — between the rear left exit steps and the men's tent. The property man was quietly gathering up his mess of junk. Under the switchboard light the electrician, sitting on a bit of plank, threw her a good-humored wink. In a moment Joe would pass this way . . . .

Soon he came. Sadie's face was demurely pretty, her eyes sparkling.

"Here's ten," she whispered, and pressed a note into his hand. I'll meet you after the show out on the driveway. I thought maybe you'd want to get the stuff first."

"How bout the others?" he asked.

"Oh," said he. Then, "All right. It'll likely be about midnight before I can get back with it."

"Don't be too long. I'll wander out there about a quarter of twelve and wait for you. The others needn't know."

He looked down into the pretty face and softly chuckled. Sadie was, after all, a fascinating creature. Snappy. Just the girl for a party.

"All right," he said again, and disappeared into the men's tent. Different girls for different uses! Why not?

It wasn't over simple to slip away unseen. Though, why should she care? Why not brazen it out? So she did brazen it out. Deliberately got into her street clothes while the other girls were going to bed. Grace was burning to ask questions, but found no opening. Hester merely looked. The only remark from Sadie herself.

She walked quickly out toward the entrance, past the shadowy rows of chairs. The men's tent was closed. The stage curtains were drawn, and the boys of the crew snugly within. As she moved away, the lights went out. Very soon Murry Watt would be trumpeting to the world from his tent behind the cyclorama.

She sauntered, smiling softly in the dark, along the curving, perfectly kept macadam driveway under the live oaks. The scent of roses touched her spirit as with a pleasing drug. After all . . . after all . . . you had to stir about now and then. And there was a zest, not untouched with lively mockery, in the thought of showing the boy up. She knew only too well how to do that. Oh, she knew.

It was nearly twelve. Her own small feet made the only near sound; from a distance floated on the chill air the faint hum of the city. A faraway deep-throated bell sounded twelve times. She folded her arms across her breast for warmth. You really needed furs out here.

Standing under a tree near a splendid gate of masonry and iron-work she commanded the boulevard. At intervals, a taxi sped by. At the first sound of each her pulse quickened. But one by one they passed. A policeman appeared, walking slowly by. Sadie stood close within the shadow of the tree.

Ten minutes passed. Fifteen. How cold it was! Her spirit, so recently edged with a piquant mockery, was sinking a little. And then a little more. Twenty minutes. Half an hour. The edge was much duller now. Sadie couldn't be angry, not deeply and never long, but she could be uncomfortable. Her feet were tired now. And that deepening chill promised soon to reach her bones. Softly, she hummed a little of the dissonantly provocative "Arkansas Blues."

Finally, a long time later, she heard that distant bell strike the hour of one. "Oh hell!" she remarked, with a shrug, and turned back toward the canvas enclosure. Only once did she look back. The boulevard was empty, just a wild expanse of dead pavement stretching away under its double row of lights. She turned then and ran. Ran to warm her blood. She even laughed a little ruefully. She undressed quickly and quietly in the dark and snuggled under the blankets.

A vagrant, but suddenly warm, memory of her husband crept in among her thoughts. He'd never been much good. He was a dancer. She wondered what he was doing with himself. It was decent of him to send the check. He must have experienced a warm little wave of feeling for her. It was rather pleasant to think of. Well, life was like that. Comings and goings and queer unexpected incidents. You took it as it came. And she still had thirty dollars. That was something. A pleasant thoght, indeed, to fall asleep on.

The troupe slept late that next morning, as they had only to move through the city to the big hotel. Sadie was the last one up. When she opened her eyes the others had scattered to find breakfast. She went over to a convenient lunch room. Some of the crew were there, and she caught the talk about Joe. He hadn't appeared at all. His cot was unrumpled. Sadie's eyes sparkled with that same amused mockery. After all, perhaps she had succeeded in making a monkey of the boy and had her sleep besides. It might yet prove worth ten dollars. She didn't mind that. She glanced thoughtfully down at her bracelet. It was money in the bank, of course. Worth hundreds of dollars, surely. With that at hand she wouldn't starve between jobs. She thought of Julian, and her color rose. What a situation! What a story, really!

At packing-up time Joe was still absent. One of the other boys had to fold up his bedding roll and his cot. There was surprise, and some grumbling. Hester kept by herself. Whatever her thoughts might be, her face told nothing. She spoke, late in the afternoon, of a recurrence of her headache. That was all.

When evening came around, and there was still no Joe, the surprise mounted into a moment of consternation. But Jim, at the last moment, made up and went on in his place. There was little that Jim couldn't do, in a pinch. All went with smoothness enough. The audience, smartly dressed and eager to be amused, laughed and applauded in all the usual places.

"Better to Have Loved and Won" was reached at last. Jim waited until the last possible moment, and then got into Joe's costume. There was nothing else to do. Hester was quietly ready. The play went on.

Julian wandered about. There was no work for him during the progress of the play. For a time he stood with Sadie behind the audience, but had little to say. Sadie, too, was distrait. She carried an unopened letter in her hand. Then, restless and more than a little his other forlorn self, he walked back behind the stage, standing by Murry Watt's tent. After a time, he became conscious of two other figures moving through the shadows there. The nearer one was a tall young man with big shoulders and an easy careless walk. He peered closely. It would be Joe. Involuntarily, his nerves tightened. The boy's unexplained absence had been a relief . . . . The other, smaller person was Sadie. She was hurrying to catch Joe. Then she spoke, guardedly, as they did backstage during a performance. The instinct to be quiet governed every small emergency.

"Joe, you devil!"

Elks Drop League Opener, 37-27; Highs Lose To Marshall

Antlers Stage Fine Battle But Fail To Shake Jinx On Shots

Lack of Team Work, Result of Short Space of Time for Practice, Handicaps Local Passers; Play Tonight at Damascus.

TROTTING out a collection of individual stars that probably would rate as the class of the entire circuit, but revealing the effects of insufficient practices together, as a team, because of the short space of time permitted for drill work, the East Liverpool Elks dropped a 37 to 27 decision to the East Palestine Paragons last night at the high school in the inaugural Columbiana County Amateur Basketball league here. The contest also provided the East Palestine quint with its first taste of league combat.

Despite a brilliant and consistent battle which they waged from the first whistle to the last, the Antlers continually were dogged by a hoodoo jinx, shot after shot going astray and even in the concluding few minutes when the team finally got going at something near the stride that it certainly should show with a week or two more of play, the locals, with victory, or at least a tie, only a matter of 10 points away, or five field goals, the timer's whistle blew out their hopes.

In Reese, Clark, Howard, McConville and Cox, Coach Bill Powell sent out a strong defensive five at the out set of the game that held the victors to a 3-2 count in the first quarter. But the Paragons began to find the baskets on long shots, and some of these long-arced heaves certainly were blessed, and the Elks' mentor sent out a second quint in Wilson, Wain, Wilde, Canne and Anderson. The Paragons were still dropping in those long-range attempts, and the half ended with the visitors on the long end of a 20 to 7 score.

Wilde, former Geneva college athlete, broke into the scoring in the second quarter with a field goal, contributed two more in the second half and generally played a heady game considering the fact that last night he had the ball in his hands for the first time, in actual play, this year.

The Elks outscored the visitors in the second half, and missed enough long and short shots to triple the count. Around the rim or off the edge of the hoops the ball rolled and bounced. Too much hurry on goal throws in an effort to catch up with the Paragons may have accounted in part for some of the misses.

Clark went back into the game in the second half and the former Ohio State man, whose shots rained of the hoops in the first half, connected three times safely. Canne sank three and Anderson contributed another.

Coach Powell had nothing but praise for the squad following the engagement and expects to get as much good out of the defeat as the East Palestine five. "The bad one is out of their system now and we can get going," he says.

The squad, shifted about as it was, did remarkably well. Reese and Clark worked well together at forwards while Howard, McConville and Cox formed a defensive trio that permitted the visitors to score three points in that first quarter. Hamilton later relieved Cox and held to the pace until the other squad took up the burden.

The Elks, at frequent intervals, flashed some brilliant pass-work, which, if maintained through the game, would have produced a different ending.

Tonight the squad will embark on its first road trip, being scheduled to play at Damascus.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON, Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

I have in mind as I write, this a golfer who plays in the 80's who could just as well play 10 to 15 strokes better—IF he would take pains and care with each shot. This fellow takes plenty of pains and care with his drive, and he hits beauties. But he is at that stage where a 240-yard drive satisfies him. A couple years ago he said: "Show me how to hit a drive 250 yards and I'll ask nothing else of golf." Apparently he told the truth, for since I taught him how to do that he goes about his iron shots with apparently no desire except to get to the next tee, and yet he can make good iron shots because his form with the wood, of course, stands him in good stead with any iron. Good golf calls for care and pains with all shots—not with some of them. This lesson every good golfer has learned. It is one of the tough lessons to learn, too, but learn it early. Even if you rank as but an average player now pains and care taken with each shot will in itself improve your game.

TURNESA-LOOS LEAD GOLF EVENT

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 18.—Turning in par 72's for the first 18 holes of the Del Paso club open, Joe Turnesa of New York and Eddie Loos of Chicago, were out in front today in the $2,500 event.

Larry Nabholtz of Cleveland, Bill Mehlhorn of Chicago and George Howard, of Canton, O., were in a triple tie for second place, two strokes behind the leaders.

The players will get away on the second 18 holes today and tomorrow the final 36 will be played.

BUSHEY GRAHAM LOSES DECISION

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Bushey Graham, Utica, N. Y., star, was a dual victim of the "jinx year" and the superior attack of his opponent last night and, at the end of ten rounds at Madison Square Garden, the unanimous decision was awarded Graham deserved to lose, for he let Canzoneri take the play away from him in the last four rounds, after having a clear lead on points up to the sixth.

Only the fact that the principals fought at catchweights probably will save Graham his championship shot with Charley Phil Rosenberg in the same ring on January 7.

Fifth City Quint's Rally In Last Half Overcomes Ceramics

East Liverpool Lads Run up 10-7 Score to Lead at Half, But Miss Shots in Final Minutes; Meet Rocky River Tonight.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 18.—By the narrowest margin possible—one point—Coach N. F. Lorah's East Liverpool high school quint lost a tough one to John Marshall here last night in the first game of their two-day Cleveland barnstorming trip. The final count was 19-18.

The Ceramic City contingent outplayed the Marshall passers during the first period and the early section of the second half, but in the concluding quarter, when the Marshall lads began to overhaul them, finally going into the lead, East Liverpool's shots failed to connect with the accuracy that marked their efforts in the opening half, when they led by a 10-7 score.

A bevy of foul attempts that the team had been making in the early stages failed to connect in the final quarter, which also counted against the Blue and White's chances.

Captain Jimmy Hamilton played his usual good floor game and dropped in five foul goals. He gave fans a thrill in the last minute when he attempted a long one that hit the rim, whirled around and then bounced out.

Wildblood, who broke in at a forward in the second half played a fine game. Tom Pusey's injured leg failed to prevent him from contributing his customary brand of play.

The East Liverpool team will go on to Rocky River tonight for its second game.

After all, what's a murder mystery, compared to the fact that one has theatre tickets in his pocket?

Anyhow, that's what Raymond Griffith thought when he was called on in "You'd Be Surprised," to solve a problem in fifteen minutes. Whether he did it or not will be told on the screen at the Ceramic theatre Monday and Tuesday.

Griffith didn't know anything about solving mystery-murders, but he did have to see that show. As a result he showed a burst of speed which made Sherlock Holmes look sick. And incidentally, he met Dorothy Sebastian, and after that neither theatre tickets nor anything else mattered.

Raymond Griffith has attained the impossible in making you laugh and gasp at the same time. Incidentally, he has asked each member of the audience, as a personal favor to him, not to reveal the end of the story.

The Community Bank will loan you money to pay your taxes.

CHEVROLET

40,000 have bought CHEVROLET the Certificate Way

—because it is the most profitable, practicable and convenient method ever devised for buying an automobile.

If you don't own a car now, the 6% Purchase Certificate Plan will help you save quickly and easily the down payment on a quality-built Chevrolet.

And if you are an owner, use the plan to pay cash for your next car and effect a decided saving.

The widespread favor now enjoyed by the Chevrolet Purchase Certificate Plan is partly due to its fundamental soundness, safety and thrift and partly to the fact that the buyer earns 6%, instead of paying interest, and receives additional attractive credits on all service and accessories purchased from his Chevrolet dealer.

Come in! Let us show you why so many thousands have used this famous and widely popular plan in buying the world's finest low-priced car.
